HOUSE BODY TO DECIDE TODAY ON HOOVER PLAN FOR ONE-BILL SAVINGS

New Conference Fails to Break Furloughs-Pay Cut Deadlock.

DIVISION OF ECONOMY CONGRESS UNIT'S AIM

Huge Omnibus Measure to Be Speeded if President's Proposal Wins.

President Hoover last night gained a tactical advantage in retrenchment negotiations with the House economy committee, when members agreed to consider a single blanket bill, embodying pay cuts, consolidations, appropriation slashes and legislative savings.

The economy committee, still committed to a pay-cut amendment to the legislative appropriations bill and three independent retrenchment measures, will decide this morning whether to take the President's way out, or demand a vote on a pay-cut House.

If the President's procedure is determined upon, all of the legislative drafting services of the Government will be concentrated for the next 48 hours on the preparation of a single omnibus bill, embracing economies agreed to by the President and the Democratic committee.

Method Deadlock Remains.

Regardless of progress made toward harmony in the method of presenting suggested economies, House committeemen and the President were no nearer agreement on the manner of reducing employe costs, followng a 3½-hour conference at the White House yesterday.

Economy Chairman John McDuffie still favors 11 per cent Federal pay slashes with $1,000 exemption. President Hoover has not budged from his simplified Federal furlough plan, introducing the principle of a five-day week and cancellation of leaves with pay.

Representative William Williamson (Republican), South Dakota, believes he holds the key to accord. He offered a compromise plan exempting employes up to $1,000 from cuts or furloughs, applying the White House 30-day furlough plan to those in the $1,000 to $4,200 group, and slashing 11 per cent from salaries over $4,200, with $1,000 exemption.

Compromise Discussed.

The plan was discussed at yesterday's White House conference. Though some saw in it a bridge between the Hoover and committee proposals, no agreement was reached.

The White House conference followed a lengthy committee session with Budget Director J. Clawson Roop on Capitol Hill. Director Roop presented the committee a partial analysis of the revised White House furlough plan which President Hoover estimates would save $95,000,000.

Members were not convinced. Immediately after the morning conference, Chairman McDuffie appeared on the floor with the President's staggered furlough plan and a detailed report on the committee's pay cut proposal. He read both into the record.

Pay Cut Rider Revealed.

"Many inquiries have been made by members of the House as to the two suggested pay cut plans," he said. "I ask unanimous consent to print those plans in the record so that the members may see them tomorrow. The President's plan is not worked out in detail. The President is to present through Col. Roop, director

Credit Wave Backed By Federal Reserve

Increased Purchase of Government Securities Included in System's Move to Speed Business Recovery in Nation.

(Associated Press.)

The Federal Reserve System has thrown its prestige and resources behind a new movement to rescue business from the grip of economic adversity.

It has instructed its member banks that they will be expected to increase their use of the broadened credit facilities provided by recent legislation. It has decided to stimulate its own purchase of Government securities in point of both volume and rate.

George L. Harrison, governor of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, testifying yesterday before the House banking committee, said the decision of Government security buying was reached at a meeting of the Reserve Board Tuesday.

His statement had a prompt reaction in the New York money market. Coincident with it came the unusually large reduction of one-half of 1 per cent in bankers' acceptance yield rates. This was viewed as an attempt to increase the market supply of such paper by attracting offers from bank portfolios. These acceptances are looked upon as a form of highly liquid commercial credit.

Resentment has been aroused in both congressional and administration circles by reports that strong banks throughout the country have refrained from rediscounting under the provisions of the Glass-Steagall bill, but instead have continued their policy of remaining as liquid as possible.

The effort toward complete liquidity, it was said in a high official quarter, has caused banks to call well-secured loans instead of extending them. This has been particularly irritating to Federal banking authorities in view of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's policy of extending as-

MRS. MASSIE HINTED AS AID, MATRON CRIES

Mrs. Frotescue in Tears After Two Testify They Heard Shot.

PROSECUTOR TO END CASE THIS MORNING

Witness States Rope Could Have Been Obtained Only at Naval Station.

Honolulu, April 13 (A.P.).—The icy reserve of Mrs. Granville Fortescue melted into tears today as the prosecution drew the name of her daughter into the Joseph Kahahawai lynching ease and produced evidence that a shot had been heard in or near her home about the time the young Hawaiian was killed.

First, the society matron gave way to her emotions when the prosecution hinted that Mrs. Thelie Massie, victim of an asserted attack by Kahahawai and four other men, may have been a possible accomplice or accessory in the lynching.

Mrs. Massie's husband, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, and two naval enlisted men, Albert O. Jones and Edward J. Lord, are charged jointly with Mrs. Fortescue in the slaying.

Again Mrs. Fortescue controlled herself only with difficulty when two neighbors testified they heard a shot in the direction of her home, alleged scene of the killing, at approximately the time the prosecution contends the young Hawaiian was slain.

Testimony About Rope.

Forging the final link of its circumstantial story, the prosecution called Cornelius Gibbs, an investigator, who testified that the rope which bound Kahahawai's sheeted body could have been obtained only at the Pearl Harbor Naval Station.

Previously the territory had produced witnesses who said the coil of new rope found in the Fortescue home and that wound around the lynching victim were alike.

With Gibbs' testimony in the record, Public Prosecutor John C. Kelley announced his case would be completed in fifteen minutes tomorrow morning.

"We think we've got everything in, but we would like to go over it again," Kelley said, smiling.

"We will be ready," Clarence Darrow, veteran leader of the defense, said, and court adjourned for the day.

Jail Matron Testifies.

Mrs. Fortescue was silent and cool for two days while the prosecution displayed its bloody exhibits and composed the circumstantial story by which it hopes to send her and the Navy men to prison. She wept today, however, when a jail matron testified to having asked her whether Mrs. Massie had recovered from the brutal attack of last September.

Mrs. Victoria Akana, the matron, testified Mrs. Fortescue replied that Mrs. Massie's jaw was "hanging a little bit crooked where it was

2 Policemen Indicted In Attack on Suspect

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., April 13.—Included in a batch of grand jury indictments before the Upshur Circuit Court today were two bills charging felonious assault as a result of "third degree" police methods against P. P. Glenn and G. W. Smalley, Baltimore & Ohio Railroad policemen.

It is alleged that Lloyd Ware, a coal miner, of Adrian, was subjected to "third degree" by defendants in the sheriff's office at the courthouse while under arrest on a charge of being implicated in the burglary of a store at French Creek. In consequence, it is charged, he was in a serious condition in a Buckhannon hospital. Ware was exonerated of complicity in the burglary and was released.

JAFSIE SCOURS NEW YORK FOR NEW CONTACT

Speeds About Metropolis Mysteriously by Auto and Elevated.

DETECTIVES FOLLOW RANSOM BILL TRAIL

Norfolk Intermediary Again Visits Lindbergh; Dean Still Optimistic.

Hopewell, N. J., April 13 (A.P.).—The 72-year-old "Jafsie" of the Lindbergh case rode an elevated train and a motor car in quest of new contacts with the kidnapers today while police followed the trail of one of the bills he used in a futile $50,000 ransom payment.

Still confident of his ability to negotiate further with the abductors, the retired educator, Dr. John F. Condon, appeared at and disappeared from his New York home with amazing rapidity.

Meantime, a New York housewife, whose interest in the fate of the stolen son of the Lindberghs led her to check the numbers on her husband's currency, gave authorities a new clue to pursue.

Mrs. David Isaacs found a $20 bill her husband had obtained at a branch bank bore one of the numbers announced by the Treasury. Officials of the bank were able to say only that the bill came to them either Monday, April 4, or the following day. A formal statement confirmed this afternoon that the ransom was paid Saturday, April 2.

Washington Ad Disowned.

Since the bank's customers numbered more than 1,500 persons on each of the two days, the problem of tracing the bill further was a large one. Police and secret service agents joined in the hunt.

Dr. Condon said early in the day that he both "had and has" means of reaching the kidnapers.

He said he knew nothing of an advertisement signed "Jafsie" appearing in the Washington newspaper.

"Ato, yes; will work with you alone and tell nobody. Jafsie," read the advertisement.

"Probably somebody is using my name," said Dr. Condon.

Dr. Condon's trips from his home were made in a car driven by Ralph Acker, a son-in-law.

On his last departure, late in the day, he carried a black bag and drove only a short way before he transferred to an elevated train bound for downtown New York.

Mysterious Transaction.

A strange incident in front of Dr. Condon's home about 8 o'clock tonight heightened the belief that extensive efforts involving numerous "go-betweens" were being made to conduct renewed communication with the kidnapers.

A closed cab bearing a carefully dressed middle-aged, bespectacled man parked opposite the Condon home after maneuvering about with its lights cut off. The occupant, apparently nervous, crossed the street and walked past the educator's residence after hesitating several times. At the street corner he met another man and an exchange of papers took place.

The first man also made several notes on a piece of paper. He then retraced his steps and rang the door bell at the Condon home, speaking briefly with Dr. Condon's friend and bodyguard, Al Reich, one-time boxer.

SMITH HITS ROOSEVELT IN BRISTLING ADDRESS AT JEFFERSON DINNER

Text of Speech by Smith At Jefferson Day Banquet

Following is the text of the address delivered at the Jefferson Day dinner by Alfred E. Smith:

In June, in the City of Chicago, the Democratic convention will assemble for the purpose of adopting a platform of political principle and a promise of political performance—at a time most critical in all of our history, with millions of our fellow citizens out of employment, business and commerce paralyzed, financial and economic ruin widespread throughout the land. Nothing on the horizon today gives better promise to the 120,000,000 people of our own country and to our neighbors across the sea than that this convention declare a set of political promises and principles which will command the attention, the respect and the support of the American people.

Alfred E. Smith.

It has been our experience, particularly in the recent past, when the tide of prosperity was high, that little or no attention was given by the great body of our people to the operations of the Government. But under present conditions the attention of the citizen in every walk of life naturally turns to the operations of the Government which are calculated, so far as the Government can do it, to bring relief.

It has been my experience in the past that the party platform has been altogether too wordy, too long, too complicated, and usually put in such language and terms as to be not readily understandable by the ordinary man. A large part of the platforms in the past has been given to denunciation of our political opponents. If ever there was a time in the history of the party when that was unnecessary, it is now. The shortcomings of the present administration are listed daily in Republican newspapers throughout the country which only four short years ago proclaimed the necessity for Republican ascendancy in order to preserve prosperity.

The ordinary citizen of the United States requires no denunciation of the Republican administration, be-

Denounces "Demagogic" Appeal Recently Broadcast.

PROPOSES NEW PLAN FOR FOREIGN DEBTS

Would "Forget Them" for 20 Years, Whittling Total as Europe Buys.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Alfred E. Smith, an angry warrior, last night proposed a solution of the war debt problem, and at the same time opened a direct fire on Franklin D. Roosevelt, leading candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Smith, in a speech that fairly stunned his hearers, suggested that the United States "forget" Europe's $11,000,000,000 war debt for 20 years, and that it further agree to write off that debt as the European nations buy goods in America. Such a program, together with tariff revision, he said, would smash the depression.

Smithwa s the chief orator at a Jefferson Day banquet in the Willard. He did not mention Roosevelt's name. It was not necessary.

Denounces "Demagogic Appeal."

His face a riotous red, his eyes flashing, the 1928 Democratic nominee shouted that "This is no time for demagogues."

"I have recently stated," he said, 'that while I would accept a nomination for the Presidency if it were tendered me by the convention, that until the convention assembled I would not be for or against any candidate.

"I announce tonight an exception to that statement. I will take off my coat and fight to the end against any candidate who persists in any demagogic appeal to the masses of working people of this country to destroy themselves by setting class against class and rich against poor."

In a recent radio speech, a speech that has been widely criticized as "demagogic," Gov. Roosevelt appealed for relief for the "forgotten man at the bottom of the economic pyramid."

Wants Federal Bond Issue.

Smith struck again at Roosevelt when he reiterated his advocacy of a big Federal bond issue to cover a public building program and thereby stimulate employment."

"Exception to this," Smith said, "has recently been taken in a Nation-wide speech by a prominent Democrat on the theory that it is a stop-gap. Who ever said it was anything else?"

The "stop-gap" expression was used by Roosevelt in the same radio speech aforementioned.

Smith's plan for handling the war debt problem is reported to have been approved by J. Pierpont Morgan, Bernard M. Baruch and other noted financiers.

Smith, after pointing out that because of Europe's war debt and because of the Hawley-Smoot tariff, American exports have fallen off in the last year 50 per cent, declared that the country should "cut through all the red tape and deal with the problem on a pure business basis.

Forget It for 20 Years.

"Let us say to the nations of Europe who owe us money," he continued, "that we will forget all about it for 20 years and not only will we do that, but we will write off as paid each year 25 per cent of the gross value of American products which they buy from us."

"This, in effect, is to say to any nation which owes us money, if it purchases $100,000,000 of our cotton, we will forget $25,000,000 of its indebtedness. If it will buy $100,000,000 of our wheat, our fruit, our tobacco or any of our manufactured products, we will forget $25,000,000 of its indebtedness. Figures here used are arbitrary and are intended

SENATE UNIT SCANS 1931 SHORT SELLING

Members Study Two Waves, but Are Silent on Calling of Brokers Next Week.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Two distinct waves of demoralizing short selling on the New York Stock Exchange during the last half of 1931 were spotted yesterday by members of the Senate banking and currency committee in their study of the detailed tabulations of short commitments presented early this week by President Richard Whitney of the stock exchange.

So closely do these two waves of persistent selling conform to some senators' ideas of "organized bear raids on the market leaders," that they propose to lay their conclusions before the whole committee for consideration.

Thus far the principal interest in the voluminous facts and figures presented by Mr. Whitney has been manifested by Senators Walcott, Townsend and Glass; but none of these would discuss yesterday the reported decision of the committee to call Wall street brokers and operators to Washington next week following Mr. Whitney's second appearance on Monday.

The first era of heavy short pressure developed early in July and con-

Protection of American investors in foreign securities will be the aim of an experts' committee of seven authorities, who have been invited to attend a conference at the Department of State tomorrow, it was announced here yesterday.

Alanson B. Houghton, former American Ambassador to Germany and Great Britain; Thomas Nelson Perkins, former American members of the Reparations Commission; Charles P. Doctors Say Harris Is "Holding His Own"

(Associated Press.)

Senator Harris, of Georgia, was described by his physicians yesterday afternoon as "holding his own" against a dangerous intestinal ailment. His heart action was pronounced "much better" and both pulse and temperature were normal, although the patient was by no means considered out of danger.

It was disclosed that at the time Tuesday morning when his heart was believed to be giving away, his pulse rate was 200 and he suffered an intestinal hemorrhage. The normal pulse is 70.

3 NATIONS SUPPORT U.S. ARMS PROPOSAL

Five Countries Join France in Opposing Plan to Abandon Tanks and Gases.

Geneva, April 13 (A.P.).—The conflict between the American and French disarmament proposals was accentuated today when reinforcements rushed to the support of each plan.

Foreign Minister Dino Grandi of Italy led the advocates of the American scheme to abolish such important aggressive weapons as tanks, heavy mobile guns and gases. Spokesmen for Turkey and Brazil also lined up behind the United States proposals.

Criticism of the American plan, voiced yesterday by Andre Tardieu, premier of France, was echoed by the representatives of Poland, Jugoslavia, Spain, Uruguay and Persia.

The French allies argued that an international force to supervise penalties against violators of international engagements was essential to the organization of peace. This international police force is the core of the French plan for dealing with the problem of disarmament.

Naotake Sato, Japanese delegate, expressed interest in both the American and the French proposals, and avoided pledging his nation to either of them.

Signor Grandi, asserting that Italy welcomed the American scheme, added to it a proposal to abolish battleships, airplane carriers and bombing planes. These weapons, he said, should be destroyed gradually. He contended that their elimination not only would reduce the burden of expense carried by the nations but also would increase security by strengthening the ability of nations to defend themselves.

The conference adjourned until Monday. Meanwhile the League of Nations Council will consider a report by the finance committee on the economic situation of southeastern Europe.

Flores Made Head Of Peru's Cabinet

Becomes Premier After Resignation of Lanatta's Regime.

Lima, Peru, April 13 (A.P.).—A new cabinet, headed by Minister of Interior Luis Flores as Premier, was formed today after the Cabinet of Premier Francisco Lanatta resigned.

Senor Lanatta's resignation presumably was caused by a disagreement with his policies in his capacity as Minister of Finance, but this was denied. Ignacio Brandariz was appointed finance minister in the new cabinet.

The others sworn in are: Alberto Freundt Rossell, foreign affairs; Elias Lozada Benavente, public works and railways; Carlos Sayan Alvarez, education; Col. Manuel Rodriguez, war; Alfredo Benavides, marine.

SENATORS TO HEAR MILLS AGAIN ON TAX

To Appear Before Finance Unit Today Due to Attack by Democrats.

By J. B. M'DONALD.

Responding to a Democratic charge that the administration is seeking to evade responsibility for a specific and definite tax program to balance the budget, Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills is to appear before the Senate finance committee to discuss taxes again today.

Invitation to appear again was extended the Secretary yesterday by Senator Reed Smoot (Republican), Utah, chairman of the committee, after Senator Pat Harrison (Democrat), of Mississippi, ranking minority member, had sharply charged Mr. Mills with unwillingness to assume responsibility for a definite tax program.

Senator Harrison launched his criticism after the committee had received a letter from Secretary Mills, counched in general terms, in which he said again what he had said before the committee last week—that he preferred the original Treasury tax program submitted to the ways and means committee but that the ways and means committee bill, containing the general manufacturers' sales tax, was second choice.

The Secretary found several specific objections to the bill as passed by the House. Among the provisions he objected to were the estate and gift tax rates, the tax on dividends, the net loss provisions, affiliated return premiums, corporation rate, and the transfer tax on bonds and the one-fourth of 1 per cent tax on stock transfers. His suggested modifications would cut approximately $200,000,000 from the estimated revenue of the bill. He suggested a 2-cent bank check tax and a tax on domestic consumption of gas and electricity, estimated to yield a total of $189,000,000 and beyond that told the committee to choose for itself from among the list of other taxes proposed in the Treasury program given the ways and means committee of the House.

Senator Harrison pressed him for

Aviator Sees New Eruption in Andes

American Embassy Attache Flies Over Active Caves in Mountain Range.

Santiago, Chile, April 13 (A.P.).—Capt. Ralph H. Wooten, military attache of the American Embassy, said after a flight over the volcanic zone of the Andes today that he saw a new and violent eruption of the Quizapu crater, southeast of Talca.

He and R. Henry Norwab, counsellor to the embassy, reported great explosions from the volcano every few minutes, shooting out a huge column of smoke and a heavy rain of ashes.

Other volcanoes—Tinguirica, Overto and Peteroa—were inactive after their outbreak of the last few days, but thick rivers of lava flowed down the sides of Quizapu in several directions. Capt. Wooten said he thought Quizapu was the most violent of the volcanoes this week, as the ashes and lava were thickest on its slopes.

6 in Family Perish In Tenement Fire

Mother and Five Children Victims in New York; Score Rescued.

New York, April 13 (A.P.).—A mother and five children perished this afternoon as fire destroyed the upper floors of a tenement in Lewis street, in the heart of the congested East Side. The six victims, the oldest child 15, were found huddled together in a charred bedroom. They were Mrs. Cecilia Sanders, 42, the mother; Fannie, 15; Bessie, 13; Sylvia, 11; Sarah, 7, and Irving, 4. The father, Abraham Sanders, and another small daughter were away from home at the time.

Mrs. Ida Kessler, 60, a tenant on the third floor, was dangerous burned. Firemen carried her down a ladder to the street. A score of other rescues were made.

Police said the fire apparently occurred in the second floor apartment of Mrs. Esther Skolky. Her son, William, 16, lighted a match, police said, in a room where an inflammable fluid was in use.

House in Arkansas Refuses Parnell Order to Adjourn

Little Rock, Ark., April 13 (A.P.).—With cheers and enthusiasm, more than two-thirds of the membership of the Arkansas House of Representatives refused to recognize Gov. Harvey Parnell's order dissolving the special session of the Legislature and met here today to attempt to enact legislation for governmental economy.

The Senate accepted the governor's proclamation adjourning the session yesterday, and most of the senators have gone to their homes.

At Gov. Parnell's office it was said no record is being taken on the House members' action.

When 69 members of the House met today, they adopted a resolution declaring Irving C. Neale, the regular Speaker, had vacated the speakership, and elected Dick Mason his successor. Then they ordered the arrest of the former chief clerk of the House, W. H. Phipps, for questioning about the removal of House records from the safe during the noon hour today while the House was in recess.

Crowded galleries cheered Representative Johnson when he arose to declare that Gov. Parnell had adjourned the Legislature to save his and his friends' "hides" and that the governor was not interested in saving the taxpayers' money.

"The grand jury also is in session," Johnson said, "and so is the State highwey audit commission. The governor and his henchmen are afraid some things they have done will be aired, and they want us to go home.

"But I believe we are doing what our constituents want when we stay here and fight the powers that be in the interest of economy. I say we can save $1,500,000 between now and January 1 by retrenchment legislation, and I believe the people want us to give it to them."

The regular membership of the House is 100.

ROOSEVELT MEN BUY VOTES, MURRAY SAYS

Oklahoman Spikes Reports He Is Quitting Presidential Campaign.

Denver, April 13 (A.P.).—Gov. W. H. Murray of Oklahoma charged here today that money was being spent to "buy" Democratic convention votes for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, and spiked reports he was abandoning his own campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"I have made statements about the buying of votes," Murray said. "I made them in private conversations. I did not intend for them to be made public at the moment.

"However, I did say that money was being spent in North Dakota to buy the State's delegation for Roosevelt, and I said, also in private conversations, that some money was spent for this purpose in Iowa."

Murray said he did not wish to go into detail about these charges at the present.

Senatorial Investigation.

A previous utterance by the governor in regard to Roosevelt expenditures in Nebraska brought another request in Washington today by Senator Robinson (Republican), Indiana, for a senatorial investigation.

"I intended to convey that Arthur Mullen, of Omaha, Democratic national committeeman, had $50,000 for the Al Smith campaign four years ago, and I was wondering if he had the same amount for Roosevelt," Murray said.

Mullen stated at the time that less than $200 had been spent in Nebraska for Roosevelt and that he had paid it personally.

Murray heatedly denied that the abrupt ending of his campaign tour in Oregon in order to rush back to Oklahoma meant that he was dropping out of the presidential race. He added that he would resume his campaigning in Ohio after his return to Oklahoma City, but that the Ohio speaking engagements had not been definitely fixed.

"Urgent Matters."

A statement by Attorney General J. Berry King, of Oklahoma, his political foe, that he had "hit upon an excuse to call his campaign to a halt" drew fire.

"A hell of a lot the attorney general knows about my plans," he exploded.

Murray refused to disclose the "urgent matters," which caused him to start back home, although speculation in Oklahoma was that interference with his administartive policies by Acting Governor Robert Burns figured in his decision.

"I am not conducting a campaign," Murray said. "I am conducting a crusade. My chief interest is in giving the Government back to the people."

Trade Board Is Hit By Farmers' Grain

Secretary of Agriculture Is Asked to Halt Chicago Contract Privilege.

Chicago, April 13 (A.P.).—The Farmers National Grain Corporation today called upon the Secretary of Agriculture to revoke designation of the Chicago Board of Trade as an authorized contract market. Complaint was made that its application for membership in the Board of Trade Clearing Corporation had been rejected.

The charges included a statement that attempts of the Chicago Board of Trade and the clearing corporation to deny trading privileges to Farmers National Grain Corporation and its subsidiary, the Updike Grain Co., constituted violation of the grain futures act and threatened "irreparable injury to agricultural producers who market their grain cooperatively."

"If necessary, recourse will be had to the courts to stop discrimination against cooperatives," C. E. Huff, president of Farmers National Grain Corporation, said.

He has been prominent in the local affairs of Vienna for more than 25 years, being a member of the town council, its mayor and town treasurer and a justice of the peace of Fairfax County for many years. ROOSEVELT TAKES NEBRASKA BY 2-1

G. O. P. Delegates Expected to Back Hoover, Though France Got Vote.

Lincoln, Nebr., April 13 (A.P.).—Nebraska Democrats have acclaimed Franklin D. Roosevelt for President and Charles W. Bryan for governor.

With the unofficial primary election returns from three-fourths of the State reported, the New York governor had a lead of nearly 2 to 1 over the combined preferential vote for Speaker John N. Garner and Gov. William H. Murray.

At the same time Gov. Bryan drew away from William Ritchie, jr., and more returns from country districts added to his 26,000 lead.

Roosevelt's advantage imposed a moral obligation on Nebraska's sixteen delegates to the national Democratic convention and a majority of them favor him.

The Republican delegates-at-large were expected to back President Hoover at the national convention in Chicago, although the preferential vote went to former Senator Joseph I. France, of Maryland. His name was the only one on the Republican ballot.

Nebraska delegates were bound only morally by the preferential result and the State executive committee favored President Hoover. In 1,404 precincts 6,241 voters wrote in the name of the President, while 25,361 marked "X" before France's name.

The Dwight Griswold-Kenneth S. Wherry race for the Republican gubernatorial nomiantion was close, with 1,568 of 2,049 precincts giving Griswold 32,485 to 31,351 for Wherry.

The nominations of two veteran representatives, A. C. Shallenberger in the Fourth District, and Edgar Howard in the Third, were practically assured.

Grower's Watch Ticks Away Despite Treatment

Suisun, Calif. (U.P.).—Marshall F. Woolner, Suisun Valley fruit grower, believes he is justified in thinking he owns a "good watch."

Several years ago the timepiece was lost in an orchard. Since then the orchard has been plowed and cultivated many times. But it took Woolner's dog to dig up the watch. Woolner shook it, gave the stem a few twists and the watch began ticking again.

More recently Woolner found the watch in a pocket of his overalls after the garment had been soaked overnight and washed in an electrical washing machine. Again he wound the timepiece. And once more it started to run.

Art Galleries Aid To Tie Salesmanship

London (U.P.).—Necktie salesmen can learn a lot in art galleries, says Owen Young, lecturer on tie salesmanship.

"Selling a necktie," Young told his pupils, "is an art in itself. Visit the Tate Gallery. Study Turner for semi-tones. Study Watts for color. Study Gaugin and Van Gogh for what to avoid—in neckties, of course.

"Neckwear is closely allied with the artistic side of life. To aspire to beauty, you must know what beauty is."

Chevalier's "Louise" In $204 Lawsuit

Paris (U.P.).—Gustave Charpentier composer, has won $204 as the result of a law suit involving his opera "Louise," which he claimed was "jazzed" up into a lively fox-trot confection and sung by Maurice Chevalier under the same title.

of the budget, a more accurate detail of what his plans are."

The economy chairman disclosed for the first time the full contents of the pay cut rider he proposes. It contains the following provisions, in addition to the 11 per cent cut with $1,000 exemption:

1. Per diem workers would be cut on a basis of 307 working days, or the number of days on which their compensation is calculated, "whichever is greater."

2. Exemptions include the President, Federal judiciary, compensation fixed by international law, employes working under contract, and workers hired on a prevailing wage-rate basis.

3. Provision that employes exempted from cuts may voluntarily turn part of their salary back to the Federal Treasury.

4. Stipulations that the President may issue a proclamation declaring the act invalid if for any 60-day period the average wholesale commodity-price level rises to within 10 points of the Bureau of Labor statistics average for 1926, computed at 100.

only to express the principle. This will help the farmer and the laborer; it will help the mill owner; it will hep the manufacturer; it wil help the railroads and the transportation industries and in turn help all the various lines of activities that are dependent upon the railroads, and help solve the problem of unemployment generally."

"Unity" Note Destroyed.

Last night's banquet was the climax to an all-day celebration of the birthday of Thomas Jefferson, founder of the Democratic party.

Originally hailed as a "unity" rally by Chairman John J. Raskob, the conclave was held in an atmosphere surcharged with discord and intrigue.

The "unity" note was destroyed to begin with last week when Gov. Roosevelt decided to remain in Albany. The gossip was that he was afraid to come here; that he suspected that Smith and Chairman Raskob were setting a "trap" for him.

If Smith originally planned to say what he said last night, then Roosevelt was right; there was a "trap" awaiting him. However, there were indictions stat Smith composed parts of his speech after Roosevelt decided to stay away. As a matter of fact, Smith was still working on his manuscript at lunch time yesterday.

Byrd's Prohibition Plank.

Eleven speeches were delivered by Democratic notables in the course of the afternoon and evening, any one of which, under ordinary circumstances, would have been worth a good newspaper "play."

However, Smith's speech, merciless in its frankness, swept aside the whole torrent that had gone before.

Former Gov. Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia, a presidential aspirant this year, proposed a prohibition plank for the party's platform that was expected to remove, or, at least, neutralize the dry stigma that is on him

Byrd suggested that the problem be dealt with through two constitutional amendments, one to clear the way for a direct popular vote by the people and the other containing whatever proposition Congress cares to submit—retention of prohibition, repeal or modification.

Caillaux Indorses Plan For World Coin Session

(Associated Press.)

Joseph Caillaux, former premier of France, in a letter received yesterday by Chairman Somers, expresses himself as in "complete agreement" with the House coinage committee's advocacy of an international monetary conference.

He said he was in complete agreement with the "iniative which you have taken in demanding the calling of a conference which would fully study the monetary question."

Moderinzation of Homes Campaign Is Launched

A campaign for the modernization of homes and a paint up and clean up movement was begun as a result of preliminary meetings called by Col. E. G. Bliss in the Board of Trade rooms yesterday for the purpose of developing business on normal lines.

The feeling of the preliminary committee is that normality of business will increase employment, which will in turn help business. The scope of the organization will include every business concern. The temporary officers chosen are H. G. Outwater, Hugh Reilly, jr., and Oscar Leonard.

SENATORS TO HEAR MILLS AGAIN ON TAX

a definite tax program and Senator David I. Walsh (Democrat), of Massechusetts, also said that the Democrats wanted a specific Treasury program. Democratic members of the committee had expected this program yesterday and the flare-up came when the committee received the letter instead.

Secretary Mills, Senator Harrison said, "has not been fair with this committee and he has not lived up to the promises he made to this committee. I can see no reason in the world why Mr. Mills would object to furnishing a specific program in view of what has gone on in the House of Representatives. Certainly his recommendations would tend toward removing friction and expedite the consideration of the proposition.

"I want to say to the administration that they will get nowhere by such propositions as that. He has camouflaged the issue. He is not willing to assume responsibility in this crisis for making new recommendations."

Secretary Mills, Senator Smoot said, pointed out the Treasury "has not only submitted one but two plans."

FORCED HOUSE VOTE ON BONUS IS SOUGHT

Patman, After Conference, Predicts Bill's Passage in Both Chambers.

(Associated Press.)

Advocates of cashing the $2,400,000,000 soldiers' bonus in new currency yesterday agreed upon an effort to force a House vote despite the Federal Reserve Board's emphatic opposition.

This decision was reached by the unofficial congressional committee on the bonus movement after a conference with Federal Reserve officials. Representative Patman (Democrat), Texas, one of the group, claimed ample support to obtain a House vote through a discharge petition, if necessary, and predicted its passage in both houses.

The Reserve System's attitude toward the bonus plan was disclosed by Governor George L. Harrison of the New York Reserve Bank, in testimony before a House banking subcommittee. Discussing the decision of reserve banks to expand credit through larger purchases of Government securities, Mr. Harrison said in reply to questions:

"An unbalanced budget or the soldiers' bonus would make it impossible to make our program effective."

On another occasion, when asked about raising price levels through new currency paid on the bonus, Mr. Harrison said:

"I feel passage of the bonus bill probably would do more to defeat what Congress has in mind than any other one thing you could do."

Mr. Patman said bonus proponents felt the Reserve Board's new policy of credit expansion by rapid purchase of Government securities would not get money into the hands of those needing it, and consequently would not increase buying power. Others on the committee, which includes Representatives Rankin (Democrat), Mississippi; Kvale (Farmer-Labor), Minnesota; Senator Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, and former Senator Robert L. Owen, of Oklahoma, thought the Reserve System plan would not be sufficiently abrupt.

"I feel that the Reserve Board's action, after all these months, is intended to offset the movement for legislation on the bonus and price stabilizing," Mr. Patman said.

Sentiment among bonus advocates meanwhile was crystallizing in favor of the Owen plan for the issuance of 4 per cent Government bonds to be made the basis for Federal Reserve notes paid on the bonus. Mr. Owen in a statement said the same plan could be used to finance the Government building program or other current expenditures.

The third day's hearing before the ways and means committee brought an assertion from Darold D. Decoe, national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, that 98 per cent of the rank and file of the veterans favor the bonus payment.

"We feel we are as much entitled to the $2,000,000,000 payment as the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was," Mr. Decoe said. "It would be the biggest pay day this country has had in many years."

Mr. Rankin told the committee, "ten billion dollars in reserve notes could be issued by the Federal Reserve system backed by 40 per cent gold."

"Yet the Federal Reserve system now calls this attempt to reflate the currency a proposal for the issuance of fiat money," he said. "The passage of this bill would save the gold standard for the country; raise commodity prices and increase employment."

96 Members of House On Beer Tax Petition

(Associated Press.)

The House wet bloc leaders last night had 96 names on the petition by which they hope to force a record vote on 2.75 per cent beer. Sixteen more signed yesterday, leaving the petition 49 names short of the 145 it takes to discharge the House ways and means committee from further consideration of the Hull-O'Connor bill, which would legalize 2.75 per cent beer and tax it 3 cents a pint.

Representative O'Connor (Democrat), New York, coauthor of the bill and secretary of the Democratic wet bloc, said elections kept many from being present to sign yesterday. He recalled the Illinois elections Tuesday and the Pennsylvania primaries, for which he said some members are at home preparing.

HORNER'S PLURALITY IS PLACED AT 125,000

Len Small's Foe in Illinois Race Powerful Democrat With Cermak Backing.

Chicago, April 13 (A.P.).—An old Republican campaigner was back in the saddle tonight for another ride over the Illinois circuit, and this time Len Small rides against a powerful Democratic general.

Judge Henry Horner, of Chicago's Probate Court, a virtual stranger to politics beyond his county, won the Democratic nomination for governor by a plurarity estimated at 125,000. But behind him was the power, risen now to a peak, of Anton J. Cermak.

And at Len Small's side rides the old cowboy Mayor Cermak unseated a year ago—William Hale Thompson. "Big Bill" had lost to Cermak's ascendancy the coveted fourth term as mayor that none had ever gained; now he renews the famous partnership to help win for the Kankakee farmer, banker and publisher the third term as governor that none has attained. Victory for Small, at 70, would crown 37 years of public life.

First Test of Power.

The former governor's margin of victory over seven opponents in Tuesday's Republican primary was expected to reach 75,000. With 5,263 precincts tabulated out of 7,229 in Illinois he held 325,248 votes to 258,133 for Omer N. Custer of Galesburg, the favorite of the retiring administration of Gov. Louis L. Emmerson.

The first test of power for the new gubernatorial candidates is scheduled for April 22, but the sifting of the heap of votes by official canvassing boards might delay calling of State conventions on that day.

Both parties have planned to organize their new committees at Springfield on the 22d.

Defeat of Michael L. Igoe and his cohorts by the regular Democratic organization under Cermak's tutelage presaged sweeping changes in the personnel of the committees. Igoe lost his bid for the governorship and political leaders foresaw his removal from the Democratic national committee.

Favorite Son Delegates.

Fifty convention delegates friendly to United States Senator James Hamilton Lewis as favorite son for the Presidency were picked by the Democrats and eight more will be chosen at the State cnovention. The Republicans named 50, most of them reputedly in the Hoover column, but the choice of eleven more rests with the convention that former Gov. Small is likely to dominate through hi snewly regained leadership. Small's first lieutenant, Thompson, is the outspoken advocate of Coolidge and foe of President Hoover.

Small asserted he would make an active campaign throughout the State.

Mayor Cermak lost no time in starting Horner's campaign for him, making the old-time Small-Thompson partnership and government economy the issue.

Chindbloom, Igoe, Hull, Kunz and Perhaps Johnson Meet Defeat.

Chicago, April 13 (A.P.).—Illinois voters apparently unseated four of their representatives in Congress in yesterday's primary election, closing tabulations showed today. Republicans Carl R. Chindbloom of the Tenth District and William E. Hull of the Sixteenth, members of Congress for fourteen and ten years, respectively, were probably defeated for renomination, with reports nearly complete.

Fourth Trial Set For Garland Smith

Counsel Seeks Change of Venue for Slayer of Officffier.

Richmond, Va., April 13 (A.P.).—Frank C. Bedinger, Mecklenburg County Commonwealth's attorney, said today that Garland Smith, young North Carolinian, must stand a fourth trial in connection with the killing of two Mecklenburg officials.

Smith, who is serving twenty years in the State penitentiary for the death of one of the officers, was convicted and sentenced to 20 years for the death of the second. The Commonwealth on March 15 confessed error in this conviction.

Gordon B. Ambler, of Richmond, volunteer counsel for Smith, said he will move for a change of venue in the case at the next term of the Mechlinburg County Circuit Court, which convenes on April 18. Judge N. S. Turnbull has denied two previous motions for change in venue and all three of the Smith trials have been held at Boydton.

Comrades Defend Detective in Trial

Deny Jones Kicked and Beat Man in Tenth Precinct Station.

Robert L. Jones, suspended precinct detective of the Tenth Precinct, yesterday began the presentation of his defense testimony in his trial on charges of beating Robert Biggs, colored, in the station house in August, last year.

Half a dozen character witnesses and officers of the Tenth Precinct who were in or about the station house at the time Biggs said he was kicked and beaten by Jones took the stand to deny that they had heard or seen anything out of the way.

ne officer, N. W. Jones, who has been stationed in the Tenth Precinct station for 28 years, said he would have immediately reported to his superior officer had he seen or heard of a beating. Jones, as night station clerk, had direct supervision of the cell block in which Biggs was confirmed.

BANDMASTERS OPEN CONVENTION TODAY

Will Discuss and Decide on Many Problems; To Be Luncheon Guests.

Approximately 50 bandmasters have assembled at the Willard for the annual meeting of the American Bandmasters Association, which begins today and will adjourn Sunday after a concert of three massed bands honoring the memory of John Philip Sousa.

Under leadership of Edwin Franko Goldman, bandmaster and composer of New York, the bandmasters will discuss and decide problems which will probably effect band instrumentation throughout the world.

Three of the most important discussions of the program will take place today when Capt. R. B. Hayward, Toronto, Canada, speaks on "Unifying of English and American Arrangements," and Capt. Charles O'Neill, of Quebec, Canada, on "Development and Importance of School Band Movement."

The convention will open at 9:30 a. m., with an address of welcome followed by an address by Edwin Franko Goldman, president. At this meeting, Peter Buys, Hagerstown, Md., will read a paper on "How to Build a Municipal Band," and G. C. Bainum, Northwestern University, on "The Percussion Section and Its Proper Employment in the Band." The Washington Kiwanis Club will be hosts to the delegates at a luncheon at noon.

EXPERTS TO SURVEY U. S. LOANS ABROAD

names of the experts has been so to make it representative of as broad a scope as possible. For this reason prominent bankers, whose names have been associated with the flotation of the millions of dollars' worth of foreign bonds and securities in this country are conspicuous by their absence. The other members of the committee will include prominent economists and technicians who have made a study of the conditions in South American and various European countries.

Former Ambassador Houghton will, however, be unable to attend, and notified the department to this effect. The chairman of the meeting will be the Acting Secretary of State, William R. Castle, jr.

The economic advisor to the Secretary of State, Dr. Herbert Feis, was in New York over the week-end, reviewing the possibilities of the conference with several of the experts.

The general plan of the conference is still undecided. No special agenda has been prepared and no particular conditions arising out of the recent collapse of the foreign security market will be reviewed.

Special emphasis was laid on this phase of the meeting after a report had been brought to the attention of State Department officials that the experts would take up the enormous loss to American investors in Kreuger & Toll. This was emphatically denied.

The origin of the rumor was traced to the membership of Thomas Nelson Perkins on the executive committee of Lee, Higginson & Co. This is the banking house associated with the flotation of the securities in this country of the late Swedish match king.

The feeling was freely expressed, notably by Senator Johnson during the course of his investigation into the amounts of foreign bonds held by American investors, that a more precise supervision should have been exercised by the State Department over the American foreign investments.

The Department of State will refrain from any supervision of the conference, once it has gotten under way. Various plans of procedure have been tentatively drawn up, but in the main, the line of approach will be determined on after the experts have had an opportunity of reviewing the problem.

It was also officially announced that the only interest of this Government in the projected conversations is the dissemination of the most ample information to investors.

The State Department was very reluctant to give any information about the conference, as they are unwilling to arouse false hopes. The first meeting of the experts will not be able to create any magic formula for solving the problem of the billions of dollars outstanding in defaulted loans by governments, States and cities. This includes the obligations of the following countries: Bolivia, Peru, Brazil, Turkey, Colombia, Mexico, Chile, Latvia, Uruguay, China and the Province of Corrientes in Argentina.

ADDRESSES AT JEFFERSON DAY PROGRAM HERE

DEMOCRATIC CHIEFS ASSAIL G. O. P. RULE

Smith, Cox, Byrd, Baker and Ritchie Tell of Problems Faced.

cause he feels the effects of it daily in his business and in his home.

Fault-finding with the Republican administration in a party platform is a waste of time and of space which had better be devoted to constructive proposals.

It must be borne in mind that the Democratic party is the minority party in this country. That is revealed to us by the indisputable fact that only two Democrats have been elected to the Presidency of the United States since the Civil War, and I am inclined to the belief that we are that minority party because during all of that period we seem to have attempted to win national approval as a rebuke to the majority party. In other words, we seem to seek negative victory rather than affirmative victory. We seek to ride into power upon the mistakes of our opponents rather than upon constructive promise and achievement on our own part.

I would like to see the platform adopted in Chicago so brief and so concise that it could be read by the man on the street with understanding in a very few minutes.

This country today is sick and tired of listening to political campaign orators who tell us what is the matter with us. Few, if any, of them know what the cure is. Of recent months I have heard no cure advanced, but I have heard the old complaint explained all over again with a few trimmings here and there. It is a perfectly easy thing to say we must restore the purchasing power of the farmer. Fine! Of course, we must. But how are we going to do it? I would sooner have a short shake-hand with the fellow that knows how to do it than listen for a week to the fellow who knows how to tell you what the trouble is. Related to our tariff, to unemployment and to the agricultural distress of the country today is unquestionably the plight in which our neighboring nations across the ocean find themselves. Heretofore when we have suffered a depression in this country we have recovered from it quickly, because the other nations of the world were not in the same boat with us, but today we find this depression not alone a fact in our own country but world-wide.

Foreign Markets Fail.

As a result of the World War the leading nations of Europe are heavily indebted to the United States. We have devised in the past all kinds of schemes for meeting the situation. We have declared a moratorium for one year, which is nearing its end. But, when all is said and done, one fact stands out far beyond the power of anybody to dispute it, and that is that the nations who owe us money have not got it. You can't get from anybody what he does not have any more than you can get blood out of a stone. And, because of these foreign debts and because of our tariff wall, American exports have fallen off in the last year more than 50 per cent.

We are a great creditor nation. We are producing on our farms and in our factories millions of dollars of products which can not be sold to our own people and which we must sell in foreign commerce, but our foreign customers can not buy because they are already heavily our debtors. They can not even pay us what they owe, much less buy additional merchandise from us, and we have added by, strangling the trade of the world and our own trade with foreign nations by holding these debts over their heads, by raising a tariff wall which shuts out their products and makes it impossible for them to pay us in goods. Our wheat is rotting on our farms while other nations starve for bread. Our warehouses are piled high with merchandise while other nations go unclothed and in want.

Would Postpone Debts.

In order to restore the buying power of the American people we have not only to stimulate business within our own borders but we must sell American products to the other nations of the world. If there is any chance of collecting the money due the United States from the foreign governments, there exists the necessity for our selling to them the products of our farms and our factories. Why not cut through all the red tape and get away from all the involved economic ideas that are connected with it and deal with the problem on a pure business basis?

Let us say to the nations of Europe who owe us money that we will forget all about it for twenty years and not only will we do that, but we will write off as paid each year 25 per cent of the gross value of American products which they buy from us. This, in effect, is to say to any nation which owes us money, if it purchases $100,000,000 of our cotton, we will forget $25,000,000 of its indebtedness. If it will buy $100,000,000 of our wheat, our fruit, our tobacco or any of our manufactured products, we will forget $25,00,000 of its indebtedness. Figures here used are arbitrary and are intended only to express the principle. This will help the farmer and the laborer; it will help the mill owner; it will help the manufacturer; it will help the railroads and the transportation industries and in turn help all the various lines of activities that are dependent upon the railroads, and help solve the problem of unemployment generally.

Foresees Flood of Exports.

I assert that this is a far better way to restore trade than the present method of sitting idly by, clamoring for the payment of debts which we know can not be paid, and thereby losing for the farmers and manufacturers and working men of the United States more billions of dollars than the whole European debt.

This plan will start from the ports of the United States a flood of American-made goods into the homes and factories of our neighbors across the sea, and we will in return credit them on the debts which we know they are unable to pay. That will remove the menace to business throughout the world which is the greatest curse of the present uncertainty.

Hand in hand with this must go a clear, unequivocal Democratic plank on the tariff. And I repeat for that purpose the formula which I used in the 1928 campaign in my speech at Louisville—that the determination of tariff schedules should be the business of an expert commission free from all political influence and pressure, and not brought about by legislative log-rolling. Its fundamental purpose must be the preservation of the high standard of the American workingman.

But since 1928, the situation with respect to the tariff has been completely changed. The Hawley-Smoot tariff law of 1930 was a drastic, unnecessary, unscientific upward revision of the tariff law. Expert advice was ignored. Increases were not based on any scientific analysis.

Hawley-Smoot Bill Effects.

The consequences of the Hawley-Smoot bill have been tremendous, both directly and indirectly. Directly, American foreign trade has been steadily dwindling, the customs revenues have gradually diminished and unemployment has increased by leaps and bounds. Indirectly, the high schedules of the Hawley-Smoot bill caused European nations to raise their own tariff walls, not only against us but against each other. This means economic strangulation for the people of every country, for prosperity can exist only when goods can be exchanged internationally.

The enactment of tariff schedules will hereafter have to be made with a view to their international aspects after careful study by the proposed Tariff Commission.

It makes little or no difference what remedies may be suggested for the relief of the present unemployment situation in this country. We will have to come out of it gradually. There is no such thing as waving the magic wand. While a settlement of the foreign debts question upon the basis that I just suggested and a readjustment of the tariff will eventually attack the disease at the root, meanwhile relief can come and will come provided the Government will stimulate industry and promote employment by the issuance of Federal bonds sold on a war-time basis for the promotion of American prosperity. Those would be used to finance necessary public improvements, both those provided for by appropriations from the general funds and those projected and designed but for which up to date no provision has been made by the way of appropriation.

Admits It Is Only Stop-Gap.

Exception to this has recently been taken in a Nation-wide speech by a prominent Democrat on the theory that it is a stop-gap. Who ever said that it was anything else? It is at least better than nothing, and infinitely better than a continuance of the disguised dole in States and municipalities encouraged by the Federal Government until the localities have given to the point of exhaustion and have reached a point where they are close to the limit of their constitutional borrowing and taxing power and at the end of the private resources of their citizens.

It is the easiest thing in this country today to tear down. It is the easiest thing in the world to criticize. It is an easy thing to tell what is the matter, but it is an extremely difficult thing to construct, to suggest and to have behind the suggestion the element of possibility of accomplishment. The country is flooded with statesmen who orate and stop at that. Oratory puts nobody to work. In a little while, unless it carries with it constructive suggestion, it will be unpopular even on the radio.

The Government is short of money. It needs close to a billion and a half dollars of new revenue to meet the estimated budget of 1933 with which Congress is now concerned. People all over the country are clamoring for relief from the eighteenth amendment and what has been termed by a Federal judge the senseless interpretation of an intoxicant promulgated by Congress.

Assails Congress "Cowards."

We have spent in recent years hundreds of millions of dollars in the futile, foolish endeavor to make people temperate by law, and while we are spending that, the farmers are losing the millions of dollars which formerly came to them from the sale of their cereals for use in alcoholic beverages, and thousands of men legitimately engaged in that industry are out of employment. And yet some members of Congress are too cowardly to apply to this situation the sound Jeffersonian doctrine of local self-government. They stand meekly by while a police ordinance grafted on our Constitution shuts off millions of dollars of income and causes millions of dollars of wasteful outlay; they quake with terror before small organized minorities who believe themselves self-appointed custodians of the morals of their fellow citizens. If this party desires to adhere to the principles of Jefferson, if it wishes to be true to itself and to the people of this country, it must at Chicago in no uncertain terms and in a language of the clear kind that Jefferson could write, declare for the return to the States of the power to control the manufacture and sale of alcoholic liquor. Let us not duck nor dodge; let us put into our platform a plank for a new constitutional amendment on this subject such as every man within the sound of my voice knows that Jefferson would write if he were alive and with us tonight.

Reforming Federal Machinery.

The Democratic platform should definitely declare for a thorough-going reorganization of the governmental machinery to prevent overlapping of function, duplication of effort and the consequent waste and inefficiency which grow from it. This must be done without fear or favor. In fact, it is my belief that the present House of Representatives should have presented such a plan. I spoke about it in the campaign of 1928 and, if I am any judge whatever of public attitude to governmental questions, what I said about it was received with acclaim by audiences which listened to me throughout the United States. It is passing strange that every time additional money is required for the operation of the Government, nobody thinks of dispensing with some of the existing expenditures, or retrenching in Government expenditures, but everybody seeks immediately new fields of taxation.

The chairman of the ways and means committee of the House of Representatives recently said that Congress was against economy, in favor of more appropriations and against taxation.

The Democratic party can not afford to maintain any such attitude. It must make a vigorous and forceful effort to reduce the cost of this Government; to cut out useless activities; to consolidate necessary ones and so to reorganize the various departments as to eliminate overhead and unnecessary expenditure of public money before it seeks new avenues of taxation.

Warns Against Demagoguery.

This is no time for demagogues. At a time like this, when millions of men and women and children are starving throughout the land, there is always the temptation of some men to stir up class prejudice, to stir up the bitterness of the rich against the poor, and of the poor against the rich. Against that effort, I set myself uncompromisingly. I protest against the endeavor to delude the poor people of this country to their ruin by trying to make them believe that they can get employment before the people who would ordinarily employ them are also again restored to conditions of normal prosperity. A factory worker can not get his job back until business conditions enable the factory owner to open up again, and to promise the great masses of working people that they can secure renewed employment by class legislation, is treachery to those working people, to the principles of the Democratic party, and to this United States itself.

I have recently stated that while I would accept a nomination for the Presidency if it were tendered me by the convention, that until the convention assembled, I would not be for or against any candidate. I announce tonight an exception to that statement. I will take off my coat and fight to the end against any candidate who persists in any demagogic appeal to the masses of the working people of this country to destroy themselves by setting class against class and filch against poor.

No relief can come to the country from constant fault-finding. Constructive proposals are the order of the day and written across the Democratic banner must be the single word "Fair"—fair treatment to everybody, to capital, to labor; to the farmer; and if here and there capital abuses its privileges, do not condemn capital as a whole, but root out the evildoer; and where unfair practices creep into the labor unions do not condemn the entire labor movement, but rather sustain and strengthen it by rooting out the evildoers. Fair treatment to everybody, special privilege to none whether they be rich or poor, is the basic theory of Democracy and one upon which it has the right to claim the support and the confidence of the rank and file of the people no matter what their condition of life may be.

It will not do for the Democratic party to seek victory at the polls simply upon the theory that there will be reward in store for the faithful in the way of patronage, and the desire to accomplish victory simply for patronage purposes seems to lie behind the cry for party harmony at the expense of party principle. One of the greatest and most heroic leaders of our party, Grover Cleveland, used these words after he had been once nominated and elected to the Presidency; once nominated and defeated and before he received his third nomination, which resulted in his second triumphal election. He said, "What is the use of election or reelection unless we stand for something," and I propose that we shall definitely and affirmatively stand for something in our Chicago platform.

Country to Be Winner.

Some Democrats say, "Give us a short convention." Others say, "Nominate a candidate against whom nothing can be said while there can not be much said for him." The disposition to gloss over controversial questions in an attempt to please both sides of the argument will bring forth a meaningless document, a colorless candidate and a weakened party. Expediency will win nothing for democracy.

It would be better that the convention remain in session all summer and give to the people a vigorous, strong, clearly defined platform, and candidates capable of fighting for it, than to hurry away from Chicago with a half-baked proposal to offer to the people of the country.

We will not win and we shall not even deserve to win if we turn our national convention into a mere cheap conspiracy to obtain the spoils of public office.

At no time in the history of the country was there offered to any political party the opportunity that is today presented to the Democratic party for constructive effort and constructive achievement in the interest of all of our people. When we speak about the party winning we should mean that the country is to be the winner. Only by courage, by foresight and by careful preparation of the platform without compromise, without the give and take processes that set principle at naught can the United States win, and if the United States is not going to win, what difference does it make which party wins?

Cox Asserts Loss of Respect For Law Is Seat of Trouble

Former Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio, toastmaster at the Jefferson banquet, declared that the historian of the future will "find at the seat of our disease a lost respect for government and law." To cope with this and other problems, Cox called upon politicians to display courage.

James M. Cox.

"It may be that things will be no better with us until a spiritual awakening has come, when public servants—representative, a senator, yes, even a President—is willing to risk his job to save a Nation. More than that, when party leaders out of office will bare their breasts to popular fallacy, regardless of consequences, men unafraid of bullets give their lives to save their country, can't public men become unafraid of votes to save their country?

"Time and conditions—the political cycle and an unprecedented emergency—are calling now for a rugged leadership. A solemn resolve is forming in the hearts of the people. Before the ides of November the people, with a fervid insistence, will be demanding to know where men stand. The time has passed for ifs and buts; it must be yes or no. It must be plainly spoken words, words that can not be construed one way by one section or group and another way by another section or group.

"Shall the ax be put to the very root of our disease? Shall our temporizing with law and the honor of our public life be further endured? The answer must be yes or no. Shall we balance the Government budget, and in a way to stimulate business so it will yield public revenues, or shall we continue to trifle with political budgets? The answer must be yes or no. Shall departments of Government smothered in the cobwebs of a forgotten utility be abolished? It must be yes or no. Shall useless departments, even though located in a State or section having great political influence, be cut out? It must be yes or no. In short, shall Government, to save itself, do as private American business, to save itself, has had to do?

"When the revenue bill is passed, only half the disagreeable task is done. While we add to one side of the ledger, we must subtract from the other. Taxes imposed now, though in the circumstances inescapable, are tolerable only for an emergency. For a long journey, the load is too heavy. In Russia, property was confiscated, but in the name of the general welfare. If we tax permanently to the point of confiscation, then our people will be quick to conclude that whereas Russia took over wealth for the public weal, we are taking over wealth for the benefit of an official bureaucracy which has made a horrifying growth in numbers and in cost. This has always, in the past, led to revolution.

"Our people are willing, in working out of our troubles, to do their share. They will recast their budgets. They will bear the difference between what they would like to have and what they must have. But this difference between desire and need they will exact also from the Government.

"America will master her own problems, as we Americans first master ourselves. Let us be helpful, so long as they are faithful to their own conscience, to our public servants, in these tormenting times, as the common man has always been faithful in preserving the Nation's prestige under stress.

"Uncle Sam has never given a bad check, and by the Eternal he never shall. Patient soul that he is, he has never failed to do his duty; yet he never rashly met insult at home or abroad. The criminal world may taunt him, but when he moves to preserve his dignity and authority his measures will fit the offense.

"I give you, fellow Americans, a toast: 'The Nation, its honor must and will be preserved!'"

Ritchie Holds G. O. P. Attacks His Party to Hide Own Faults

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, in his speech at the Jefferson Day banquet, said that the Republicans, in crying out that the Democrats had "failed the country" when they defeated the sales tax, were simply trying to cover up their own "ineptitudes and shortcomings."

Albert C. Ritchie.

"Looking back over 12 years," Ritchie continued, "we see disarmament conferences which failed to disarm; foreign policies—if, indeed, they can be called policies—weak, ineffective and incompetent; tariffs which destroyed our foreign trade and encouraged American industry to go abroad and there employ foreign labor at the very moment when American labor is out of a job; treaties to outlaw war which failed to outlaw attacks by one nation upon another; and economic policies which resulted in the most gigantic crash of the whole economic structure ever witnessed by the American people. We have a surplus of wheat when American citizens need food, a surplus of cotton with a deficit of clothes, and more than 8,000,000 men and women anxious to work but compelled to walk the streets in idleness and seek charity in order to survive.

"Where is the leadership that should have acted to prevent the catastrophe, and which, when it was upon us, should have been alert to mobilize the resources of the Nation to meet the crisis and decrease its harmful effects? Certainly not in the Republican party. Its chiefs were busy in 1929 trying to prove that there was no danger. They were still busier in 1930 explaining away the increasing unemployment, the widening depression and the collapse of industry, and promising that prosperity, momentarily away, was just around the corner. In 1931 and 1932 they have become less vocal in their promises and performances, and are reduced to the expedient of seeking flaws in the Democratic party.

"The Democratic party can not be injured by defeatist propaganda. It is equipped and it is ready. The Nation is about to turn to it as the only hope. The Democratic party will respond to the call. It will lead the way back to those principles of government under which confidence in ourselves and in our destiny will be restored, and a happier day for all the American people will dawn."

Byrd Proposes Popular Vote To Determine Dry Law Future

Former Gov. Harry Flood Byrd of Virginia a life-long dry, proposed at last night's Jefferson Day banquet that the Democratic party adopt a prohibition plank that would permit the people to vote directly on retention, repeal, or modification of the eighteenth amendment.

Harry F. Byrd.

His plan would require two amendments, one to permit a direct popular vote instead of a vote by legislatures or conventions, and another, later on, embodying the proposed change.

"I stand," said Byrd, "upon these beliefs:

"(a) That prohibition is the law and should not be nullified by deliberate failure to observe it, but

"(b) That it is still a human law that may be amended or changed, and

"(c) That as a question affecting the lives and habits of the people it should be decided by a popular vote by the people themselves.

"No matter what plan is proposed, a constitutional amendment is necessary. I suggest an amendment to provide the legal machinery to permit the people themselves to determine this vexing question. The amendment could read as follows:

"'The Congress, whenever two-thirds of both houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose an amendment or amendments to or the repeal of Article XVIII of the Amendments to this Constitution, or to any future amendment or amendments thereof, which shall be valid to all intents and purposes, as part of this Constitution, when ratified at an election to be held in each of the several States on a certain day, to be designated by Congress, by the majority of the electors voting thereon in three-fourths of the several States. The electors in each State shall have the qualifications requisite for the electors of the most numerous branch of the State Legislatures.'

"This will enable—

"(a) When two-thirds of Congress desire, the question of the repeal or modification of the eighteenth amendment can be submitted to every qualified voter in every State on a day selected by Congress when no other election is held.

"(b) Each State will vote as a unit, and three-fourths of the States, as at present, will be necessary to change the existing amendment.

"As I see it, in no other way can the voice of the people in secret ballot be given expression. A constitutional amendment submitted to legislatures does not enable a direct expression from the people; neither does an amendment submitted to State conventions.

"Regardless of my own individual views on prohibition or any other question of equal importance affecting the lives and habits and individual rights of the people, I am willing to stand firmly upon the fundamental democratic principle that the people themselves have the right to decide it, and whenever desired by a substantial proportion of our people they should be given the opportunity to do so. It is not more police or more government, but stronger convictions and law enforcement spirit, that we need. This means a revivification of honesty and courage, which will require all the fortitude that Jefferson bequeathed us. I make this suggestion without thought of candidacy for any office, but as a constructive effort to solve the problem confronting us."

Baker Says Ideals of Wilson Can Not Speedily Be Attained

Former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, in an oration before the tomb of Woodrow Wilson at the Washington Cathedral yesterday, said, in part:

Newton D. Baker.

"It has been said of Mr. Wilson that he was a dreamer, with this difference, that he made his dreams come true. To a remarkable degree this observation applies to the bold reforms he brought about in our domestic policies and in the start he gave to the kind of institutions necessary to rationalize international relations, but his long vision of a reordered world is too profound and ultimate to be speedily accomplished. It involves a change in the psychology of the race as well as in the technique of diplomacy, it rests upon a larger diffusion of knowledge and a deeper penetration of culture, it can be accomplished only by slow steps with hesitations and falterings as the nobler ideal encounters obstinate prejudices and arouses historic fears.

"To larger degree than we commonly realize, progress in these matters has been made since the World War, and if there was at one time a disposition to discount the thing called idealism, that disposition has been chastened by our experiences of very recent years, of which all the lessons are not yet clear but which surely seem to vindicate afresh the inadequacy of a purely materialistic foundation for a modern society. These lean and anxious years seem, too, to show again the completeness with which the life of any modern nation is integrated with that of the other nations of the world, a fact which has followed from the growth of international trade and finance and which extends a nation's frontiers beyond its geographical limits until they coincide with its interests in far-flung parts of the world. Implications of the dangers and of the opportunities of this new situation were implicit in Mr. Wilson's vision of the new era and in his realization that the end of the old era had come.

"This 13th day of April is the birthday of Thomas Jefferson. I am speaking in the shade of the monument to Woodrow Wilson. Between the lives of these two men, throughout our national history, flows the current of a democratic philosophy, universal in its scope, propounded by the Sage of Monticello. From his day until now his philosophy has battled for the dominance of the world. The tide of its advance has sometimes been retarded, here and there it has met the obstacle of new conditions and has had to readjust itself in periods of doubt and hesitation, but each obstacle has but served to raise the tide and render its ultimate advance the more irresistible. Certain triumphant applications of it have followed each of our temptations to discard it. In the life of Andrew Jackson as in that of Abraham Lincoln it received fresh vindications, and in the whole of its great history it has had no more superb statemen than from Woodrow Wilson, no other prophet has with greater vision extended its reach.

"Again we have fallen upon days of doubt and disillusionment. Again we need the scholar's detachment and the leader's voice. For the moment we can but say to this great soldier: 'Sleep on. The army which you led is still advancing, the acceptance of the doctrines you preached is still growing, the ideals you cherished are still vital, and the happier world toward which all of our faces are turned will recognize you as one of the great architects of its hope.'"

COURT BILL FRIENDS FORECAST VICTORY

Test Ballot of Senate Group Gives Cheer to Sponsors of Adherence.

(Associated Press.)

Senate sponsors of world court adherence yesterday forecast victory in the coming committee vote on the basis of a test ballot which rejected a proposal that other nations be asked for their interpretation of the Root protocol in advance of action on ratification.

By a vote of 11 to 8, the foreign relations committee defeated the Pittman resolution to ask the other powers if they understood that the treaty would prevent the court from rendering advisory opinions on questions affecting the United States without this Government's consent.

World court friends contended the vote was a test of strength on the Root protocol itself, and predicted that when the issue comes to a vote the treaty will be approved by about the margin by which the Pittman resolution was defeated.

Supported by Foes.

Although the resolution was offered by Senator Pittman (Democrat), Nevada, a friend of the court, it was chiefly supported by those who are opposed to joining the tribunal without a reservation protecting American rights beyond dispute.

Supporters of the Root protocol contend it fully covers the fifth reservation adopted by the Senate in 1926 to prevent the court from rendering advisory opinions affecting this country without its consent.

They have proposed a resolution of ratification setting forth this view, prepared by Senators Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, and Walsh (Democrat), Montana.

Others Want Assurance.

The "irreconcilable group" of senators, however, are doubtful of this interpretation and want the assurance of other signatories, or else a reservation such as adopted by the Senate six years ago.

The eight votes for the Pittman resolution were cast by Senators Borah, Johnson, La Follette, Robinson of Indiana and Glenn, all Republicans; Pittsman and Lewis, Democrats, and Shipstead, Farmer-Labor.

The opposing ballots were cast by Senators Capper, Reed, Fess, Vandenberg and Cutting, Republicans, and Swanson, Robinson of Arkansas, Walsh of Montana, Harrison, Wagner and Connally, Democrats.

Senator Swanson, who is at the Geneva arms conference, voted by proxy.

Luke Lea, Jr., Ill, Asks Continuance of Trial

Nashville, Tenn., April 13 (A.P.).—Counsel for Luke Lea, his son, Luke Lea, jr., and four others charged with conspiring to defraud the closed Liberty Bank & Trust Co. of $150,000, sought a continuance of their trial, docketed to start Monday, but Charles Gilbert held his answer in abeyance today.

Affidavits of physicians were submitted, saying Luke Lea, jr., is undergoing medical treatment, and trial at this time would endanger his health further. Judge Gilbert directed that the physicians appear in court tomorrow, so that he could question them as regards proceeding with the trial without interrupting Lea's treatment.

SENATE COMMITTEE STUDIES 1931 SHORT SELLING WAVES

tinued with the operations apparently shifting from week to week from one group of stocks to another, until early September.

The next great flood of bear selling began to hit the market in the last week of October and persisted with increasing force until the end of November.

In each of these periods of pressure, say those committee members who have studied the stock exchange reports for three days, the greatest increase in the short account was in the pivotal stocks, which are regarded everywhere in the financial community as the issues which dominate speculative sentiment. Such issues as American Can, A. T. & T., U. S. Steel, General Motors, New York Central, and Pennsylvania figured in each of the alleged month-long raids.

The first flood of short selling appears on the stock exchange charts for July 3, 1931, and during the following week the total short interest increased by some 250,000 shares, as the average price for all listed stocks dropped precipitately.

Marked Upturn in Index.

On July 10 President Hoover published his first challenge to depressing short sales on the commodity exchanges, and the following week the open short commitments on the New York Stock exchange dropped back sharply to the July 1 level, accompanied by a marked upturn in the average price index.

Then the threat of drastic governmental action against short selling passed, after which the short interest on the stock exchange increased from 3,600,000 shares on July 17 to 4,300,000 shares on August 10. During this interval the weighted price index of Standard Statistics' 90 pivotal stocks dropped from 113 to 107.

In the Sears Roebuck stock, the short interest increased from 12,684 shares on July 17 to 26,900 shares on September 24. In United States Steel, the short interest increased from 278,534 shares on July 17 to 396,900 shares on September 11. Westinghouse Electric showed an expansion in the open short account from 149,120 shares on July 17, to 179,200 shares on September 11.

A second heavy short attack on Westinghouse stock appeared on the table as of October 26, when in a single day's trading the short interest increased from 46,100 shares to 89,900 shares.

Bethlehem Steel Prominent.

Bethlehem Steel was another focal point of the July short selling. In this stock the open short commitments increased from 123,100 on July 3, to 202,786 on July 31.

In the case of du Pont, the short interest expanded from 69,000 on July 10 to 100,500 on September 4.

In Fox Film, the short position developed from 35,000 shares on July 17 to 79,700 shares on August 14.

Shorts in General Motors increased their commitments from 236,900 shares on July 24, to 404,000 shares on September 11.

Traders in North American Co. extended on the short side from 25,249 shares on July 24, to 53,600 shares on September 18.

Bear Interest Expansion.

In Pennsylvania Railroad the bear interest expanded from 27,800 shares on July 17, to 68,700 shares on September 11.

Selling which assumed tremendous proportions was recorded against Chrysler stock during the early summer, the total short interest increasing from 71,100 on May 25 (the day the exchange began keeping records on such commitments), to 151,500 shares on August 7.

During the period of this heavy increase in the short account, the average value of all stocks listed on the exchange dropped from $37.50 a share in July, 1931, to $35.50 in August, to $31.10 in September.

The second great wave of selling began to appear in the market late in October, with the five leaders still bearing the brunt of the short assault, but in this second campaign the selling spread to a number of stocks which apparently had escaped in the July-September bear offensive.

Table on Expansion.

The following table, compiled from President's Whitney's figures before the Senate committee, indicates the expansion of the short interest in various pivotal stocks in the November selling. The first column shows the short commitments opening as of the beginning of business on October 29, and the next column, the short interest as of the opening on November 30:

Stocks	Oct. 29	Nov. 30
American Can	104,242	137,268
A. T. & T.	91,054	169,012
A. T. & S. F.	15,797	23,614
Auburn	30,690	51,301
Coca-Cola	16,300	26,850
Cons. Gas of N. Y.	39,160	61,329
Continental Can	9,735	14,612
Corn Products	3,490	14,238
Eastman	32,758	46,211
General Motors	226,504	401,304
New York Central	60,946	73,226
North American Co.	44,501	108,140
Pacific Gas	2,816	10,113
Public Serv. of N. J.	18,385	32,586
Radio	32,548	48,795
U. S. Steel	267,307	332,387
Woolworth	28,666	55,051

In the case of Radio-Keith-Orpheum, the short interest went up from 88,126 shares on October 29 to 149,852 shares on November 5. By November 30 this interest had dwindled to 18,885.

Decline Without Rallies.

During the short selling wave of November prices moved down without even the sustained technical rallies which have come to be regarded as almost inevitable in a free market.

For the month of November the average price of all stocks on the exchange was $28.80 a share, and for December this figure stood at $24.20. Both averages are from the official reports of the Stock Exchange.

Committee members have not yet traced the price movements for the specific stocks in which the short interest expanded, but they plan to do so.

When Mr. Whitney takes the stand again next Monday committee members plan to examine him closely on his theory that when the short interest declines in a falling market the whole question of "bear raids" become "ridiculous."

Actual Increase Cited.

From their studies, members of the committee point out that while the short interest of the whole market declined from 5,600,000 shares on May 25, 1931, to 2,600,000 shares on September 18, in certain stocks the short account actually increased between these two dates.

The following table indicates the expansion of the short interest in selected issues:

Stock.	May 25	Sept. 18
Alaska Juneau	18,300	38,700
Alleghany	15,500	17,200
American Can	153,300	169,900
Amer. F. Pow.	62,800	128,600
A. T. & T.	96,800	112,200
J. I. Case	84,900	104,300
C. & O.	8,100	16,000
Col. Gas	15,300	19,000
Con. Gas N. Y.	42,600	46,800
El. L. & P.	22,800	36,300
I. T. & T.	67,200	80,300

The stock exchange reports, however, do not include short-sale hedges by odd-lot houses, nor "sales against the box," which frequently run as high as 50,000 shares a day on the short side.

Taxi Driver Saw Ransom Collector

Believed to Be in Position to Show One Man Alone Involved.

New York, April 13 (A.P.).—The Sun said today that at least one person besides Dr. John F. Condon may be in a position to identify the man who obtained the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom.

This is a taxi driver who delivered a note to Dr. Condon on March 12, telling him where to go to undertake negotiations for payment of the ransom and return of the baby.

The Sun says the taxi man's description of the person who gave him the note and Dr. Condon's description of the man to whom he gave the money tally closely and indicate that the entire negotiation may have been conducted by one man.

Police have not located the taxi driver, and the Sun says he asked the paper to withhold his name.

The record was designed to be used in presenting the story to many affiliated groups and is now available for use at any time and upon any occasion.

Each day since the inception of this contest has seen greater numbers enjoying the privilege of making a genuine RCA record of their own voices, without cost or obligation. In addition, every contestant has an opportunity to share in the distribution of $700 in merchandise prizes, and, after his record has been rated according to character of registration, he may have it to keep.

VIRGINIA U. HOLIDAY HONORS JEFFERSON

Drive for Library Begun by Founders' Day Speakers; Enrollment Increases.

Charlottesville, Va., April 13 (A.P.).—Founder's Day was observed by the University of Virginia today—the 189th anniversary of the birth of Thomas Jefferson.

Classes at the university were suspended for the program which had as a feature an address of Acting President John Lloyd Newcomb, who proposed that friends of the institution join in establishing a more adequate library as a memorial to the late Dr. Edwin Anderson Alderman.

A total enrollment of 2,604, the largest of any regular nine-months' session of the university, was announced. These combined with the 2,964 in the summer quarter and in the field of adult education, and 164 in the nurses' training school make a total for the academic year of 5,732.

"It has been the custom of the past," Dr. Newcomb said, "for the presiding officer of this occasion to play the role of Santa Claus by announcing great gifts. This year our story is different. It is the very modest sum of $37,457.02."

Floral tributes from admirers far and near were placed this afternoon on Jefferson's grave on the slope of Little Mountain.

Earlier a reception had been held at Monticello in honor of President Edgar Odell Lovett, of Rice Institute, who this morning delivered the Jefferson day address at the university.

The speaker praised the memory of Jefferson and Alderman. He also appealed for funds with which to provide a library for the university. President Newcomb called on friends of the university to provide such a library as an Alderman memorial.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., April 13.—Speaking at the Founder's Day exercises today, Dr. Newcomb reaffirmed the need for a new library. "The financial depression may postpone but nothing shall prevent the accomplishment of the fixed purpose of our late president, Dr. Edwin A. Alderman," he said. "I suggest a common effort to place upon these grounds a building which shall be known forever as the Edwin Anderson Alderman Memorial Library of the University of Virginia."

An enrollment of 2,604 students, the largest in any regular nine-month session of the university, was announced by the acting president. These, with 2,964 more in the summer quarter and in the field of adult education, and 164 in the nurses training school, make the total for the academic year 5,732.

30 Governors Will Attend Memorial Exercises on April 28.

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., April 13.—Exercises commemorating the 174th anniversary of President James Monroe's birth will be held here on April 28, when the chief executives of 30 States, headed by Gov. John Garland Pollard of Virginia, will come to Fredericksburg to pay tribute to the memory of the author of the Monroe Doctrine at his first law office, now a national shrine. The governors will pause here en route from Richmond, where the four-day conference of governors will end that day, to Mount Vernon and Washington. In Washington they will be the guests of President Hoover at the White House.

After the ceremonies at the Monroe law office the chief executives will be escorted by a group of local citizens to the monument marking the grave of Mary Washington, where they will lay wreaths from all the States represented.

Monroe practiced law in Fredericksburg from 1781 to 1786. Prior to this he was commissioned in the Revolutionary Army. It was here that he began his term as the "world's greatest officeholder." He was successively city councilman, delegate to the Assembly, delegate to the First Continental Congress, delegate to the Virginia constitutional convention, Minister to France, Minister to Great Britain, again Governor of Virginia, Secretary of State, Secretary of War and twice President.

Warden and Flee 4 Men Imprison

Son of Georgetown, Del., Jail Official Locked in Cell With Him.

Georgetown, Del., April 13 (A.P.).—Four prisoners who escaped from the Sussex County Jail after locking Warden William Morris and his 12-year-old son in a cell were at large today.

Taken by surprise as he entered the cell of a sick prisoner last night, Warden Morris was overpowered by the men, who seized his keys and fled. Officials expressed the belief they escaped in an automobile with Maryland license plates which had been parked outside the jail.

The fugitives, for whom police are conducting a widespread search, are James and Frank Dickerson, brothers, and George Coffin, convicted of stealing chickens, and Thomas Cahall, jr., who was awaiting trial for embezzlement. Hearing his shouts for help, Harry A. Joseph, a farmer, released the warden and his son and called the sheriff.

VIRGINIA HIGH COURT DOCKET IS CLEARED

Supreme Bench Prepares to Adjourn Until June Wytheville Session.

Richmond, Va., April 13 (A.P.).—For the first time in six years the State Supreme Court docket is clean.

Announcement that the docket had been completed with the exception of one or two cases in which counsel were not ready, was made by officers of the court today as the court prepared to adjourn until the June session in Wytheville.

It was said to be the first time that the entire docket had been cleared since 1928, when a special Court of Appeals was appointed.

The court since November has handed down 85 decisions and granted or refused writs in 145 cases. The docket since November has been cleared of a total of 135 cases, 103 on the argument docket, 14 on the privileged docket, 2 on the corporation docket and 16 on the Commonwealth docket.

In its closing sessions the court refused an unusual motion in the case of William Parsons, a wealthy Eastern Shore bachelor, appellant, vs. Grace Rebecca Parker, appellee. The motion asked that the girl's child and several others who appeared in the circuit court in the case be ordered in the presence of the higher court during the argument. In the lower court, Parsons was ordered to pay damages on a charge of being the father of Miss Parker's child.

The court refused a writ of error to Melvin Elbourne, who in the circuit court of Lancaster County was convicted of attempting to murder and was sentenced to serve five years in the penitentiary.

Summerfield, Denton; second vice president, Mrs. Norman Clark, Hillsboro; recording secretary, Mrs. T. Clayton Horsey, Greensboro; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. L. Gallagher, Preston; treasurer, Mrs. H. H. Long, Federalsburg.

Withdrawal Aim To Save Vote Cost

Washington County Group to Ask France to Act; $12,000 Involved.

Hagerstown, Md., April 13.—As a result of the contest in the Republican primary it will cost Washington County $12,000, and members of the Taxpayers League, recently organized here, plan to urge former Senator Joseph I. France and one of the two candidates for the Senate to withdraw in order that the money can be saved. There is no Democratic contest.

The primary was the result of the filing of Mr. France for the Presidency and the race between State Senator Wallace Williams and Linwood Clark for the Republican United States senatorial nomination.

Under the law the ballot must contain a box permitting voters to declare themselves for an uninstructed delegation to the national convention. If Mr. France had not filed the delegation would have received its instructions at the Republican State convention.

Holland Family In Congress Race

Former Representative or Wife to Seek Virginia Seat in House.

(Associated Press.)

Primary or convention, there will be a member of the Holland family of Suffolk in the race for the Second Virginia District Democratic congressional nomination.

Mrs. Eunice Holland, wife of former Representative E. E. Holland, announced yesterday she would run if a primary is held. On the other hand, she said, if the district executive committee decides to hold a convention, her husband will be a contender.

Mrs. Holland is the first woman in Virginia to announce a congressional aspiration this year. Mrs. Sarah Lee Fain, of Norfolk, failed to get the party's nomination in the Second District primary in 1930. The announcement placed the name of Holland alongside those of Colgate W. Darden and W. W. Vellines, both delegates from Norfolk in the General Assembly. The nominee will face Menalcus Lankford, the Republican incumbent.

W. Wilkiow's, near Lucketts.

The boys, whose names are Bethel Frye, William Whiting, James Fautz and Earl Davis, confessed to the thefts when taken before authorities. They will be tried at this term of court.

Marylanders End Water Conference

Sixth Annual Parley Closes in Cumberland With Sewerage Talks.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., April 13.—The sixth annual conference of the Maryland-Delaware Water and Sewerage Association concluded here today with discussions on water topics. H. E. Beckwith, of Pittsburgh, read a paper on "Effect of Waste Water on Storage Water Supplies." He described water wastage from leak mains and other causes, with graphs and charts on a blackboard and his experiences in Cumberland, Md., and Ashland, Pa., in 1930 and 1931.

F. E. Stuart spoke on "Developments in the Use of Activated Carbon in Water Plants Durng Recent Months." A discussion followed, conducted by C. A. Hechmer, department engineer, Washington Suburban Sanitary District.

Moving pictures of the progress of the work on the Thomas W. Koon impounding dam, recently completed in Bedford County, Pa., in connection with the Cumberland water system, from initial work to completion, were projected by H. R. Allen, of the J. E. Greiner Co., Baltimore, consulting engineers.

VIRGINIA ROAD WORK WILL GIVE 500 JOBS

Emergency Repairs Are Near Completion in District 5; Projects Begun.

Frederick, Md., April 13 (A.P.).—State road improvement, under the supervision of Thomas M. Linthicumn, road engineer for District No. 5, embracing all of Frederick and Carroll and parts of Howard, Montgomery and Washington counties, is under way.

A considerable amount of emergency work, caused by the recent blizzard, is being completed and the normal work, in which about 500 men will be employed, will keep up during the summer and fall. At one time during the emergency period 1,200 men were given employment on the roads in this district.

In Frederick County grading is in progress on the road between Creagerstown and Loy's Station. Approaches are being filled and digging for the foundation for piers and abutments is under way for the new bridge between Rocky Ridge and Detour. Excavation for a new bridge over Fishing Creek is being made near Lewistown and grading is in progress for 1 mile of new road between Middletown and Jefferson. About 100 men are employed on these projects.

In Carroll County grading is in progress on the Key highway between Taneytown and Keymar. Grading for a new bridge over Deneca Creek, between old Germantown and Dawsonville, in Montgomery County, has been completed.

Grading has also been completed on the road between Dickerson and Martinsburg, the latter a small village, and the work of laying macadam has begun. Grading between Dickerson and Mount Ephraim has been started. Considerable road work has been in progress during the entire winter in Montgomery County.

During the past two weeks road work has been going forward in this county and Carroll County.

The Fifth District embraces about 600 miles of State highway, the largest road area of any district in the State. It is estimated that about 5½ miles of new road will be constructed in Carroll County and about 7 miles in this county during the year.

Shotgun Duel Fatal To One; Foe Is Hurt

Huntington, W. Va., Men Shoot It Out After Dispute in Store.

Huntington, W. Va., April 13 (A.P.).—One man was killed and another wounded slightly when they dueled with shotguns on a Huntington street today. Arnold Fuller, 60, died from wounds inflicted by K. W. Perry, 50, who was treated in the city jail for buckshot wounds.

The men argued in a grocery store owned by Fuller, officers said, and a short time later met on a street corner, both carrying shotguns. They began shooting, and Fuller, wounded in the chest, staggered into his store and collapsed.

A clerk in the store said they had argued over a real estate deal, but Perry said the quarrel was about a grocery bill.

BADEN HIGH SCHOOL MERGER IS OPPOSED

Brandywine Trustees Stress Advantages of Big Scale Consolidation.

The trustees of the Brandywine High School have decided against a merger with the Baden High School, on the ground that this would increase the attendance at the Surrattsville School rather than the Baden institution, they said in a letter received by the Prince Georges County School Board.

The consolidation of the Baden and Brandywine Schools had been suggested as a means of increasing the Baden attendance sufficiently to warrant a larger teaching staff. Most of the Brandywine students live between this town and Surrattsville, the trustees said, and would go to Surrattsville rather than drive 5 miles more to Baden.

The letter suggested a large scale consolidation of high schools in the county, with four schools to be substituted for the present nine. One of these four should be in the lower rural area, one in the upper rural area, and two in the metropolitan area near the District line, the letter said. It was signed by S. G. Townshend.

No action on the letter was taken, but Superintendent of Schools Nicholas Orem pointed out that the enrollment at the Brandywine School had dropped to 49, too few to justify keeping the present number of teachers. "Some adjustment apparently will have to be made in the teaching staff of this school next year if the enrollment does not increase," Mr. Orem said.

The board announced that it had two scholarships at Western Maryland College, open to students in the county. One is for men and one for women, and both provide $500 a year for four years. A competitive examination will be held in July for them, the board said.

Col. Anderson Is Firm For Dry Modification

Richmond, Va., April 13 (A.P.).—Col. Henry W. Anderson still believes that modification of the eighteenth amendment is the best solution of the liquor problem, but he will not support attempts to repeal the dry laws.

Speaking to the Republican Club of Richmond last night, Mr. Anderson, who as a member of the Wickersham committee had urged modification of the liquor law, said he could be classified neither as a wet nor a dry. Instead he claimed to be only "an American citizen who desires to see this problem solved by constructive methods which will reduce the use of intoxicating liquors to a minimum, take from the criminal element of the country one of their chief sources of income, and promote the social and economic welfare of this Nation."

Grist of Baltimore U. S. Court Drops

3 Big Alcohol Conspiracy Cases Blamed for Low-Result Figures.

Baltimore, April 13 (A.P.).—The number of criminal cases disposed of in the United States District Court during March, 1932, was 66 fewer than for the same period of 1931, according to figures prepared in the office of Simon E. Sobeloff, United States district attorney.

Two reasons were assigned by Mr. Sobeloff for the drop from 129 cases completed to 63 cases. He pointed out that both Federal judges sat on criminal cases during March of last year, whereas but one judge sat last March and there was no criminal court for the first two weeks in the month.

He also pointed out that among the cases handled were three large alcohol conspiracies which occupied approximately a week of the court's time.

IN JEFFERSON'S NAME.

On the time-honored Democratic platform of denunciation of the opposition all speakers at the Jefferson Day celebration were agreed, but they did not agree upon anything else. Constructive suggestions were few and far between. The addresses of Senator Robinson, Newton D. Baker, James M. Cox and Gov. Ritchie contained nothing new.

Gov. Al Smith was most fruitful of novel inventions in statesmanship. When he enters the field of national and international affairs he delights and astounds the country. No hidebound precedents disturb him, and no constitutional bars obstruct him. On the question of war debts, for example, he declares: "They can not even pay us what they owe, much less buy additional merchandise from us;" and then he outlines a plan to induce these same penniless debtors to buy liberally from the United States, by giving them credit on the debts up to 25 per cent of whatever they spend in purchasing cotton, wheat, or other American goods. This plan, says Gov. Al, would spur American industry, give business to the railroads, help unemployment and get rid of the war debts.

Gov. Smith would wipe out the power of Congress to enact a tariff law and place it in the hands of an expert commission "free from political influence." The Supreme Court has said that Congress can not delegate the power to legislate, but this fact does not deter Gov. Smith. He is his own interpreter and expounder of the Constitution; and to his credit it may be said that no other interpreter or expounder has ever been more daring, more ingenious, or more devastating.

Gov. Smith's third constructive suggestion is to have the Government go into debt still more, "to promote prosperity." He would issue bonds, and spend the borrowings in public works already agreed upon "or projected." Here is an opportunity for unlimited squanderings for drainage of swamp lands, storage of surplus waters on rivers from Maine to California, a Federal building in every town, and dozens of other projects which would furnish employment for untold millions. "Prosperity by going into debt! The bigger the debt the greater the prosperity!" These and other suitable slogans suggest themselves in the reading of Gov. Al's magnificent speech.

There will be much comment upon the left-handed blows administered to Gov. Roosevelt by Gov. Smith. In one striking passage he declares war, and in more than one sentence he is the happy warrior scenting the delight of battle with his quondam sponsor and follower. Evidently the sound of heavy guns will boom over Lake Michigan in June—all in the name of Thomas Jefferson and Democratic solidarity, of course.

Gov. Byrd's contribution to constitutional thought is novel, also. He would constitutionalize a popular referendum on the prohibition question. One of his amendments would set up the referendum system, and another would refer to the people the question of repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Of course, the makers of the Constitution could not think of everything, and perhaps it is fortunate that the Virginians of old are succeeded by statesmen who can improve upon the faulty work of Washington, Madison, et al. Tom Jefferson could not but applaud the bold stroke for the liberation of demos, as proposed by Harry Byrd.

But take it all in all, Jefferson Day honors go to Happy Al Smith. While others confine their labors in the main to Hoover howling, he strikes out in unpathed waters, along undreamed shores, toward the millennium that is just around the corner. His plan to sell goods abroad to nations that have no money with which to pay their debts, with a special discount on the debts for each cash purchase, is the most ingenious scheme for the restoration of American prosperity that has ever been or ever will be suggested.

ATTACKING DEFLATION.

A new movement to check deflation seems to be taking definite shape in Washington. President Hoover has indicated that he is mobilizing the financial resources of the country for another attack upon the depression. A special meeting of the governors of the Federal Reserve banks strengthens the belief that a new source of stimulation for distressed business and industry is about to be tapped. It is certain that the Government's foremost financiers are wrestling with the problem, and inasmuch as Congress recently gave them a powerful new weapon against deflation, constructive results can be anticipated.

So long as prices continue to decline and the liquidation of securities goes on unchecked business and industry do not have a chance to forge ahead. Constructive plans result in losses before they can be executed. The vicious process of liquidation has gained powerful momentum and drastic measures are needed to check it. If President Hoover and the Federal Reserve Board can halt this movement and turn prices to an upward trend they will perform the greatest service that can be rendered to the American people in this critical period.

It is a well-known fact that the potential benefits of the Glass-Steagall act have not been passed on by the banks to the public. Bankers are not wholly to blame for this situation. They can not improve conditions by lending money for unprofitable enterprises. Nor can they force credit upon the public when business is at a standstill because of falling prices. It is up to the Federal Reserve Board to loosen the whole financial structure so that the concentration of all value into money will be reversed.

The credit extension act allows Federal Reserve banks to issue currency supported by 40 per cent gold and 60 per cent Government bonds. Formerly such notes could be issued only with commercial paper as collateral. It is rumored that the banks intend to increase their purchases of Government securities so that they will be in a position to expand the currency and ease the money situation. That is one of the most encouraging signs in the whole economic spectrum.

Fiat money would be no cure for the present distressing conditions. It would only lead to more formidable difficulties. But a general loosening of credit and expansion of currency on a sound gold basis ought to be a potent stimulus for business. There is nothing unsound in utilizing America's enormous gold supply to restore a reasonable balance between money value and commodity prices. Whatever action the Federal Reserve authorities take along this line will undoubtedly constitute a major counteroffensive against the depression.

SYNTHETIC DIAMONDS.

One of the most interesting achievements of modern science is the production of diamonds in the laboratory. As early as 1893 Henri Moissan, a French chemist, produced some minute artificial diamonds, but his process was of no commercial importance. L. H. Barnett, American mining engineer, has now brought forth diamonds ten times as large as those first produced in France. His synthetic product is large enough to be used for abrasive purposes.

Mr. Barnett's discovery is particularly interesting because he copied nature's plan. In writing his book, "The Chemistry of the Earth's Core," he arrived at the conclusion that the center of the earth is an impure iron. Under terrific heat and pressure coupled with slow cooling, he believes natural diamonds were formed from the carbon of that metallic body. Mr. Barnett sought to duplicate the process in the laboratory of Columbia University and was successful.

Iron was melted to a very high temperature. In this iron was carbon, silicon and phosphorus. When the metal was thoroughly molten it was poured into large steel shells and allowed to cool very slowly. During the cooling the silicon forced precipitation of the dissolved and combined carbon, thus producing graphite and increasing the original volume. The terrific pressure thus created within the steel shell converted part of the graphite into diamonds. Then the iron was removed by acids and the diamonds were left.

Whether or not this method of creating the most precious of stones will come into commercial use is an unanswered question. These diamonds are not large enough for ornamental purposes, but if nature's method can be copied, what is to prevent the artificial manufacture of stones large enough for engagement rings? Science has accomplished other feats seemingly more difficult. Romantic young men may not always be dependent upon African mines for the evidence of a contract.

DISTRICT LEGISLATION.

The House did a good day's work for the District on Monday. Fourteen out of eighteen bills presented to the House by the District committee, of which Representative Norton is chairman, were passed and sent to the Senate or White House. These measures provide for amendment of the condemnation law, street development, changes in the banking regulations of the District and various other projects of importance to the people of Washington.

Foremost among the successful measures is the firearms bill, which was introduced at the request of the District Commissioners. It provides additional penalties for crimes of violence when the offender is armed. The right to buy or possess a pistol would be denied to any one convicted of a violent crime. Licenses would be necessary for all citizens who wish to possess small firearms, and a purchaser would be required to sign a statement as to his past record. Licenses would be denied to minors, drug addicts and criminals, and no dealer would be permitted to deliver a pistol to a purchaser until 48 hours after his application had been filed.

This bill is an attempt to deny to criminals the use of firearms while not unduly restricting the rights of law-abiding citizens to obtain weapons for their own protection. It ought to have early consideration in the Senate. If similar measures were enacted in all of the States they would undoubtedly become an important obstacle to crime.

In busy sessions, like the present one, Congress is inclined to neglect the District. Vital national affairs crowd District legislation off the active calendar. Mrs. Norton is to be commended for securing the passage of these measures. It is to be hoped that the Senate District committee will hasten its consideration of the District bills awaiting action by the Senate, so that they will not be lost in the final legislative jam.

THE PRESIDENT'S SIGNATURE.

The Attorney General of the United States has again rendered opinion that when the President signs a bill passed by Congress after Congress has adjourned the bill becomes law. This appears to be a logical as well as a common-sense view to take. As the brief from the Department of Justice contends, no practical reason has ever been given to support the contention that the President should not do so. While it has been the custom for the President to notify Congress that he has approved bills, there is no further action required from Congress following executive approval.

It is provided by the Constitution that in the event of the adjournment of Congress a bill shall not become a law if the President does not sign it, but there is no provision to the effect that a bill must be signed before adjournment. Nonapproval of a measure is the contingency provided for.

This question has been a matter of dispute for more than 100 years, but it now is in a fair way to be settled by the Supreme Court. The point was involved in a case before the Court of Claims, which would have been barred by the statute of limitations unless jurisdiction had been conferred by an act signed by the President on March 5 of last year, after Congress had adjourned. The Court of Claims certified to the Supreme Court the question as to whether the act of March 5 in fact became a law. The brief just filed by the Attorney General in the Supreme Court sustains the contention that it did.

The point was first raised in 1824, when John Quincy Adams as Secretary of State sustained President Monroe in the right to sign a bill after congressional adjournment, but his Attorney General did not agree. President Wilson signed various bills after adjournment, including that creating the Federal Power Commission. It usually happens that on the last day of Congress a large number of bills are rushed through, making it impossible for the President to give them consideration during the last hours of the session. With the presentation of this question to the Supreme Court it will soon be definitely settled.

Democrats worship Monticello as the symbol of victory, but they prefer Donnybrook as a symbol of practical tactics.

MIGRANT AMERICANS

From the New York Evening Post.

The restlessness of America has often been commented on. The American urge to go, to move, to travel somewhere else, is traditional. That restlessness was behind the sweeping colonization which extended the Nation from the Atlantic to the Pacific. It filled the Ohio River with flatboats, dotted the prairies with clearings, peopled the mountains with trappers and sent an endless train of covered wagons out the Oregon Trail. But great as those mass migrations were, the days of '49 did not see the end of that restlessness which makes Americans pack up and move on, if only to see what lies beyond the next ridge. The movement is still on.

In the census of 1850 it was shown that one out of every five native-born Americans had moved from his native State. The census of 1930, according to a recent analysis, shows approximately the same thing. Every census between those two has shown the same trend, in the same general proportions. The only difference worth noting is that the total number of migrants has grown. In 1930 it was about 25,000,000.

Half of this migration is not so important as it seems at first glance. More than 12,000,000 of those who moved from their birthplace into another State merely moved over State lines. They were born near the border. They moved across and settled. But that still leaves more than 12,000,000 who yielded to the lure of far horizons.

Of those 12,000,000, nearly half belong to that Westward movement which has been going on for 200 years. Once the dividing line was the Alleghenies; now it is the Mississippi River. Today finds 5,145,922 persons born east of that river who are living west of it. Since the turn of the century there has been a return wave, but the Eastward movement has been only about one-fourth as strong as that toward the setting sun.

The North and South movement is not so marked, and much of it has been the migration of Negro laborers toward the industrial North, accelerated by the post-war boom. The last decade, however, has seen approximately 1,000,000 Southerners settle in the North.

Taken by States, the figures are even more striking. The South Carolinians, for instance, have their State to themselves. Only 7.9 per cent of the total population was not born within the State's borders. At the other end of the list is Wyoming, with 64.4 per cent of its people born elsewhere. Natives of Nevada seem to be born wanderers, for 49.4 per cent of them have gone elsewhere. California must breed contentment, for only 8.3 per cent of its native sons are lured away. Twenty States showed gains in American-born population native to other States during the decade, California heading the list with 2,401,285.

POST HASTE.

Give the boys a hand; things are moving on Capitol Hill.

From Detroit come emissaries to urge inflation upon Congress and threaten revolution. Detroit should stick to automobiles.

Congress might save something by cutting out the man who sprinkles "applause" through the extended speeches in the Record that never were delivered.

The House is doing its best to get rid of the stinging bees—bonus, bonds, bogus money, beer—before the budget-balancing bill gets back from the Senate.

Passing through Philadelphia Al Smith said that "if the voting age in 1928 had been 18 instead of 21 I would have taken Mr. Hoover to the laundry." If they are young and unsophisticated he can fool all of them all the time.

If there is anything the Senate committee does not understand about short selling, Wall street can make a graph of it that will make the ignorance permanent.

A Senate committee is to investigate the effect of depreciated currencies abroad on American trade. One thing it should note is that while the value of the pound fell 30 per cent, domestic prices in England have risen only 8 per cent, because there has been no inflation.

Secretary Stimson must expand himself to the limit if he is to be an effective stop-gap between disarmament plans and the French idea of an international army.

The bonus has almost been lost sight of in a fight for adulterated money. With the veterans divided on the advisability of payment now and with the bogus-money men in Congress split over methods of inflation, there is hope!

The loss of six billions in stock values in the last two weeks ought to warn any remaining lambs to stay out of Wall street.

GAR WOOD AND CHESS.

Gar Wood, the water king of speed,
Upon a pleasure trip
Observed two men of different breed
Play chess upon the ship.
He watched them sitting thinking there
Before a piece they'd move
And nervously he said: "I swear
That game I can improve.

"Though nothing of that sport I know,
From all that I can see
The moves they make are much too slow
To hold a charm for me.
They sit and sit and squirm and twist
And think and groan and fret;
Three good long hours of life they've missed
And nothing's happened yet!"

He paced the deck four times and came
To view them at their fray
And found the chess board still the same
As when he'd gone away.
"Good Heavens!" he cried, "this thing won't do,
It's much too slow indeed!
'Twould be much better fun if you
Would show a little speed."

He pulled a stop watch from his coat
And said: "Get going now!
For every move you make, please note,
Five seconds I'll allow.
Start up your wooden conquering horde!
The penalties I'll call."
They raced the bishops round the board
But it wasn't chess at all.

When a Door is Closed to American Goods, Your Job Is Endangered.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

AMERICA, you are told, should keep out of the row in the Orient. That is true. America should keep out of all rows. But a man must protect his property.

How does the quarrel threaten America? By endangering American property and prestige, and, in some degree, the jobs of all Americans.

China, without a responsible central government and scornful of military men, has discovered her most effective weapon in the boycott.

Her millions provide a vast market for alien goods. To bring any nation to terms, they need only boycott its products.

In 1905 there was a boycott of American goods, officially inspired as always, and a threat of force was necessary to stop it. In 1922 a boycott of British goods cost England $400,000,000, and the prestige lost by surrender.

Last year Japan was the victim. Japanese goods were outlawed. No merchant would buy or sell them. Japanese goods in transit were destroyed by mobs. Chinese merchants would not sell food to Japanese residents. On every street appeared signs: "Kill the dwarf slaves."

The boycott ruined the business of Japan, for China is normally her best customer. Japanese mills and banks closed; thousands of men lost their jobs.

Japan decided to break the boycott by force. Other nations approved, for they had suffered in the same way.

But Japan's plans miscarried. She landed marines at Shanghai, thinking the Chinese would run. Instead, the Chinese dug in; repulsed 2,600 men; then 12,000; then 25,000, assisted by planes, field artillery, tanks and the guns of 40 warships—repulsed them and drove them back.

Japan used her part of Shanghai as a base of operations. Shanghai, built in what was once a pestilential swamp, is a great international city, ruled only by consuls, where all of the powers have equal rights. Land is worth five million an acre. America has $100,000,000 invested in the city.

Japan's operations endangered the city and brought business to a standstill. That was a blow to all nations, for Shanghai is the world's third most important port. Through it passes most of America's $338,000,000 trade with China.

That hurt was temporary. But every gain Japan makes in China means a market lost to America, and every market lost means more Americans vainly looking for jobs.

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Collecting a Deficit.

New York Herald Tribune.

Undeterred (and possibly even stimulated) by the American Legion's stand against the paper bonus, leaders of the Veterans of Foreign Wars have marched upon the Capitol, bearing 2,500,000 signatures to petitions demanding that the printing presses be started in the name of patriotism. "I will drive a six-mule team through the Treasury," a G. A. R. pension lobbyist once exclaimed. "God help the surplus!" Today there is no surplus; all that a six-mule team driven through the Treasury could collect would be a deficit. The V. F. W., therefore, are proposing to drive a supertank through the whole program wherewith the administration has been struggling to meet the economic prostration of the country. Their intention is not simply to wreck the Treasury but to wreck the only present hope offered by anybody for curing the conditions under which the former service men, in common with every one else, are suffering.

Wooden Money.

Brooklyn Eagle.

The wooden money of the village of Tenino, in the State of Washington, exhibited by Senator Dill at the Capitol, is of three denominations—25 cents, 50 cents and $1. Each piece is a thin sheet of spruce inscribed with the pledge of the chamber of commerce committee that the obligation is a charge against the assets of a closed bank at Tenino, which the committee is winding up.

Scientifically considered, money has two functions—one as a measure of value, the other as a medium of exchange. A promise to pay, backed by gold reserves, is as much a measure of value as the gold would be. The Tenino wooden money, within the village, does have the function of a medium of exchange. If Tenino bought nothing from outside her limits and produced all she needed, then wooden money would be as good as any. But Tenino merchants can't restock their stores from outside and pay with the wooden currency. Spruce is no measure of value under any conceivable conditions.

Correspondent Believes Economy Necessitates Discharge of Faithful Employes—But Hoover Plan Would Prevent This.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial of April 12 on "National Economy" is excellent, and is in line with almost universal public demand at the present time, but like all advocates of economy you tie a string to it. After demanding drastic cuts all along the line, you state: "But Congress ought not to take any action that will leave faithful Government employes without jobs in this period of distress." How can there be material curtailment in Government activities (regardless of the utility of such activities) without faithful employes losing their jobs?

No doubt our harassed representatives in Congress would appreciate a satisfactory answer to this question.

Arlington Memorial Bridge Needs Traffic Policemen to Guard Pedestrians.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With the arrival of spring, the recently opened Memorial Bridge to Arlington has become the attraction of thousands of automobilists on Sundays. Last Sunday afternoon there was an unbroken line of autos coming along Constitution avenue, turning towards the Lincoln Memorial and proceeding to the bridge. How about the pedestrian?

Crossing either Constitution avenue or the foot of Twenty-third street or the road back of the Memorial toward the bridge seemed a risk of life or limb. I wanted to take a walk along the bridge into Virginia. I stopped, waited a long time for a chance to cross, but the autos proceeded three abreast, without a break in the line, and the drivers paid the slightest attention to pedestrians. I finally had to give up. I saw other pedestrians in a plight similar to mine, who also evidently gave up their intention of going to the bridge. Two traffic officers, if stationed in that locality, would have solved the problem. Alas, there was not even one policeman in sight.

Can not something be done? I hope the District Commissioners will take up the matter.

Tough Old Democrat Can't Stand for Al Smith Merely on the Plea That He Is Popular.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am a tough old Democrat and have lived through so many political upsets that I am not apt to get too much excited when, according to my ideas, party management is out of joint. But now that former Presidential Candidate Alfred E. Smith comes out with the announcement that he is a regular candidate for the presidential nomination and not a "stalking horse," I must confess that I am both astonished and disgusted.

If he cut any figure as a mouthpiece of sound Democratic doctrine, like the great leaders of the past, I would not object to his seeking the nomination, notwithstanding his former defeat. If he were another Martin Van Buren, it would not be so bad. But to nominate him on account of an alleged popularity—alleged by himself and his industrious following of professional wets—is, of course, at this time of economic rehabilitation something too ridiculous for the rank and file of Democrats to stand for.

Mr. Brown Corrects The Post Headline—Mr. Randolph Referred to Profits From Violation of Law.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: On page 13 of The Post of Sunday, April 10, appears an article sent out by the Associated Press reporting an interview with Robert Isham Randolph. The head line reads: "Head of Secret Six Says Capone's Fall Is Not End of Gangs. Power to Continue as Long as Dry Law Remains, Randolph Says."

The article itself quotes Mr. Randolph as saying that the criminal syndicates "are going to continue as long as the big profits and the huge rewards are to be had from violations of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead law."

The head line makes it appear that the criminals result directly from the dry law itself. Mr. Randolph evidently did not say this.

Iowa Reader Corrects Congressman Clancy on Conditions in Canada.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There are some things that would be wonderful if they were true. There is Congressman Clancy's speech in favor of legalizing beer, for instance. He says: "The Province of Ontario has a surplus of $500,000 in its treasury, Quebec is also flourishing and the other provinces of Canada would have been in sad straits were it not for the revenue from beer and liquor."

Doesn't Mr. Clancy read the papers? Canada is today resorting to every known device to make both ends meet and has a deficit this year which is comparable to the situation in our own country. The main railroad of Canada had an operating loss last year of $100,000,000. A sales tax of 6 per cent is being collected on everything in the Dominion.

Mr. Clancy says bluntly that Ontario has little or no crime. Well, perhaps their police discourage criminals. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics, however, states that the arrests for drunkenness in Ontario increased from 10,063 in 1922 to 17,260 in 1929, and in the Dominion convictions for violation of liquor and temperance acts rose from 8,510 in 1922 to 33,826 in 1929.

Come again, Mr. Clancy—only don't swallow all the statistics the wets are dishing up.

RECEIVER IS NAMED FOR KREUGER FIRM

Appointment Is Made After Petition Charges Loss of $250,000,000.

New York, April 13 (A.P.).—Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey appointed the Irving Trust Co. today equity receiver for the International Match Corporation, one of the interests of the late Ivar Kreuger.

The appointment was made upon motion of Morris Bernhard as assignee of a claim of $3,100 against the corporation by the Hudson County National Bank, of Jersey City, N. J., registrar of the company's capital stock in that State.

Bernard's petition set forth that the corporation had been bereft of its income in large part by reason of the operation of Kreuger, Swedish capitalist, and his subsequent suicide in Paris, and that his death had resulted in a condition of chaos among its various subsidiaries.

"It is estimated that the total loss to the defendant corporatiton and affiliated corporations through his 'mismanagement,' the petition stated, 'will exceed $250,000,000. Of this amount the defendant has lost a considerable part.'"

Frederick W. Allen, president of International Match, in an answering affidavit admitted "all the averments in the bill of complaint" and consented to the appointment of a receiver. Judge Caffey directed creditors and stockholders to show cause on May 16 why the receivership should not be made permanent or terminated.

The plaintiff further stated that the only other proceeding in which an equity receiver could be appointed was an action brought by Benjamin Potsker, a stockholder, in Delaware, seat of the firm's charter.

MATRON IN TEARS AT HAWAIIAN TRIAL

broken." In the attack case Mrs. Massie had testified Kahahawai had broken her jaw.

Mrs. Fortescue swallowed hard and then the tears came. She disdained to wipe them away.

The matron then testified how she had taken a portion of a sheet away from Mrs. Fortescue. Other prosecution witnesses had testified the cloth matched the missing part of one of the sheets containing Kahahawai's body when found in possession of Mrs. Fortescue, Lieut. Massie and Lord.

Wanted for Handkerchief.

"She asked me to give it back," Mrs. Akana testified. "She said she wanted to use it for a handkerchief."

"Did you give it back?" Kelley asked.

"No."

The accused society matron soon regained her composure, however, but during an intermission she leaned forward and dabbed hurriedly at her eyes. Her sister, Mrs. Helen Ripley, moved to her side to comfort her. When the trial continued she became calm and smiled as Lieut. L. H. C. Johnson, associate defense attorney, reassured her.

Testimony that a shot came from the direction of the Massie home about 9 o'clock on the morning of January 8, when Kahahawai was slain, came from Miss Helen Stickney and Mrs. Emily Tarleton, sisters, who lived next door. Miss Stickney fingered a ribbon of her dress while she testified and appeared relieved when Darrow did not cross-examine her.

Were in Dining Room.

"My sister and I," Mrs. Tarleton said, "were in the dining room when we heard the report. My sister jumped and said 'Did somebody shoot a gun?' I said, 'Don't get excited; it's just a firecracker.'"

With obvious effort Mrs. Fortescue retained a grip on her composure as the neighbors testified. Her shoulders moved and she sighed heavily. Her eyes again glistened with tears, but she blinked them away.

Mrs. Massie's name was involved in the lynching case when Kelley interrupted Darrow's cross-examination of John McIntosh, chief of detectives, regarding a visit to the Massie home shortly after Kahahawai was slain.

McIntosh said he had gone there with Commander Richard W. Bates, head of the Navy shore patrol, and that Mrs. Massie had packed an overnight bag after Bates had advised her to go to the Pearl Harbor Naval Station for safety.

Has Not Been Identified.

"Would it have been possible," asked Kelley, "to have put a .32-caliber pistol in that bag?"

"Yes," said McIntosh.

The pistol with which Kahahawai was killed never has been identified. The prosecution produced witnesses today, however, who testified that Jones, who was arrested, allegedly while intoxicated, at the Massie home, had the cartridge clip of a .32 caliber pistol in his possession; had kept a box of cartridges in a Y. M. C. A. locker downtown, and had bought cartridges of the same type as one found in the Fortescue home.

Henry Chillingworth, who found the clip on Jones, testified he asked him about his pistol and that Jones had said it "might be down in my locker at Pearl Harbor."

Vasca Rosa, employe of a sporting goods store, testified to selling the ammunition to Jones and also to selling a .32 caliber revolver and a box of cartridges to Mrs. Fortescue last December 15.

Told Not to Return to Work.

Yoshi Adachi, a Japanese girl, apparently about 12 years old, testified she had worked for Mrs. Forescue until the day before the lynching, but that on January 7 the society matron had told her not to come the next day because she would not be home.

"Did she ever tell you at any other time you needn't come the next day?" Kelley asked.

"Yes," replied the girl; "Christmas."

Through an interpreter, Mrs. Shizu Yamamoto, a Japanese living next door to the Forescue home, testified that on the morning of the killing she saw the society matron pull down the shade of a sedan parked near the house.

Keeps Prosecution Guessing.

Her interpreter was James Hakuole, Hawaiian, whow as educated in Japan by order of Kalakaua, the last Hawaiian king to reign over the islands.

Darrow's apparent indifference in the little cross-examination he had done thus far and his avoidance of disclosing what sort of hand he will play has left the prosecution guessing as to what he will do beginning tomorrow.

"That's all; no questions," was his only word as most of the prosecution witnesses were turned over to him for questioning.

Success Rules Best Way For Girls to Miss Mate

By JOHN J. DALY

HEAVEN used to protect the working girls, but the working girl is now advised to go on her own if she would be successful; and the rules for success, as formulated by a national sorority, are rather simple.

To win success, all a working girl needs do is be sparing in the use of lipstick, eat spinach, get eight hours' sleep, avoid gossip, keep thin, refrain from chewing gum, be on time, do what the boss wants when he wants it and keep her mind on her work.

There it is: Keep your mind on your work.

That is the difficulty; for how can a girl keep her mind on her work when there is a telephone in the office and the boy friend on the other end of the line whispering sweet nothings in her ear?

Outside the office building, these spring days, there is mellow sunshine, its reflection dancing on the office walls. In the sunshine there are flowers abloom—lilacs, roses, posies, rhododendrons, lilies-of-the-valley, even orange blossoms—all suggestive of life at its best.

That means no office work, but a cottage built for two, rambler roses round the door, a robin on the lawn, and green grass growing.

* * * *

KEEP your mind on your work? Try to do it!

How is a girl to keep her mind on her work when, from an adjoining office, come strains of music over a radio, the wedding march, like as not? Lo, and behold, there is a violin virtuoso playing Lohengrin or Mendelssohn's Melody in F. How can a girl keep an active mind at work when all nature calls, and young blood boils?

Success? What is success?

Surely no working girl considers herself successful until that day when she leaves the office and her business future behind, to trip the light fantastic down the endless lane with a young man bent on matrimony. The surest way a girl can postpone this great adventure is to follow a false philosophy and keep her mind on her work.

Guest in Home Saves Man's Life From Gas

The fact that he took a friend home with him to spend the night probably saved the life of George E. Ayton, 51 years old, of 919 L street northwest, yesterday. The friend, John M. Proctor, of 1123 C street southeast, awoke when he smelled gas.

He went to the kitchen and found Ayton unconscious on the floor with three jets of the gas range open, according to police. The fire rescue squad was called and revived the unconscious man. His condition was not regarded as serious and he remained at home.

Tender New Carrots Give Freshness to Meal.

AGAIN comes the day for fish-dish planning which must mean that once more we draw close to another week's ending. And here we are in the very midst of April, with May flowers and fine new things for the food stalls just around the corner. But some of spring's good things are already to be had at prices sufficiently reasonable for even a very modest budget, dandelion greens, for example, and pink rhubarb and strawberries, to say nothing of spring onions and tiny tender carrots which, by the way, will serve admirably for our fish menu for tomorrow. Let's strip them into straws and boil them in just enough water to "start" them and thus prevent their being burned. There is sufficient moisture in the carrots to carry on their cooking, which makes for better flavor. No liquid should remain to be drained off—just add butter to the saucepan (after the fire is turned off) and when it has melted—serve 'em.

FRIDAY'S DINNER.

Onion and Potato Soup
Boiled Salmon Steak with Shrimp Sauce
Buttered Carrot Straws
French Fried Eggplant
Lemon Meringue Pie
Coffee

Onion and Potato Soup.

2 cupfuls raw potatoes, cubed
1 onion, sliced
1 pint milk
1 pint boiling water
1 cupful celery, cut in small pieces
2 tablespoonfuls flour
2 tablespoonfuls shortening
1 teaspoonful salt
Dash of pepper

Melt the shortening, add celery and onions and cook about ten minutes, stirring frequently. Add the flour, mix well and cook until frothy. Add the cold milk and cook until thick. Meanwhile, parboil the potatoes in the boiling water about five or ten minutes. Combine ingredients, season and serve.

Boiled Salmon Steak With Shrimp Sauce.

Have the steak cut about 2 inches thick. Wrap in a piece of cheesecloth and put into a kettle of salted boiling water. Simmer 20 minutes and serve with shrimp sauce.

Shrimp Sauce.

2 tablespoonfuls of butter.
1 tablespoonful of flour.
1 cupful boiling water.
½ teaspoonful salt.
1 cupful chopped shrimp.

Mix the butter and flour to a smooth paste in the top of a double boiler, and add the boiling water, gradually, stirring until it thickens. Add the salt and the shrimp, remove from the fire and serve at once.

Lemon Meringue Pie.

4 tablespoonfuls cornstarch.
1 cupful sugar.
Grated rind of one lemon.
1½ cupfuls boiling water.
2 egg yolks.
¼ cupful lemon juice.
1 tablespoonful butter.

Mix together the cornstarch, sugar and grated lemon rind. Add the boiling water slowly, stir and strain. Cook until thick and clear, stirring all the time. Cover and cook over hot water ten minutes. Beat the egg yolks with the lemon juice, add the hot mixture, return to double boiler and stir two or three minutes. Add the butter and when cool fill a baked pie shell. Cover with meringue and bake in a slow oven until delicately browned.

Meringue.

2 egg whites.
3 tablespoonfuls sugar.
½ teaspoonful vanilla.

Beat the egg whites until stiff. Fold in the sugar gradually and add the vanilla. Heap lightly over the lemon mixture, completely covering it so that the meringue will not shrink from the sides of the pie.

Menus for Gaining Weight

The present-day vogue of feminine curves reveals many women and girls who are underweight. There have been many fads with the object of reducing weight, but our thinner sisters have been quite neglected in the past. Miss Carey reveals that both overweight and underweight conditions may be rectified by common sense attention to diet, and in a special folder, now available, gives selected menus and suggestions for gaining weight. Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

A spring suit of unusual elegance in "filetric," a silk and wool mixture with a pebbly surface. And the odd closing of a spring coat showing a threaded scarf effect matched with sleeve linings.

NEW YORK, April 13.—Red is a color for brunettes. Occasionally a very vivid blonde can wear an equally vivid coral tone well, or a demibrunette with very blue eyes and dark hair can wear a deep rose shade well. But generally, red is for brunettes, as blue is for blondes. The only blues, on the other hand, that look well on brunettes, are those with green tinges, and of sufficient strength themselves to flatter the brunette, which paler tints do not do.

So, and Patou has put all this color psychology together, and what? Evolved a purple-blue, a color that is very much discussed right now and one that has a fair chance to be another color rage—heaven forbid. But a color that is flattering to almost every type imaginable, has such a chance. And this purplish blue is just that—flattering to every type. It lends depth and character to blondes, deepens and enhances the coloring of brunettes, gives color and character to paler type of every description.

The reason for this should be obvious—red and blue make purple, and red deepens blue, giving it the warmth and depth that it lacks. While blue elevates red to a more celestial and less passionate color.

Every reader of this column simply must have the "Secrets Every Lovely Lady Should Know." It's this week's leaflet, and I know so well that if you have it, you will be a hundred per cent lovelier and happier, save pennies and have more of them to spend on loveliness. So do you wonder I want you to send for this leaflet? 'Nif I knew your address I would just send you one, so there. But not knowing it, I have to ask you to send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post for the leaflet, and maybe then to tell me how you like it when you send for another leaflet next week.

HAT CHAT.

And then the beginning of the twentieth century saw hats change from small to large and back again. Some of them looked like models of flowerbeds and fruit gardens with birds. Ah, bliss for the flower manufacturers, terror for them ladies! Because milady was in constant danger, with this monument on her head, of a gust of wind or a narrow doorway, or of being kissed—even umbrellas were not sufficiently ample to protect her load of vegetation from the showers, which that kind of vegetation didn't react to very well!

• • • •

Just too utterly chic, I thought! The lines of the jacket and how they did not hug the hips was different. And the way the skirt buttoned down to the knees, 'n' oh, everything! That's why I simply had to sketch the tailleur I saw for you today, knowing that you would enjoy it, too. Oh, it's nice to be living in the style world of nineteen hundred and something, instead of seventeen or eighteen hundred and anything!

• • • •

And the little part of a coat to an ensemble—the odd fastening, the way the scarf threads through and the chic of having the scarf match the inner cuffs of the coat, which was otherwise unlined. The dress to this ensemble was of the same material as the scarf, and the open, pebbly weave to the coat showed the printed frock and cuffs through, oh, just a tiny, little bit.

Au revoir.

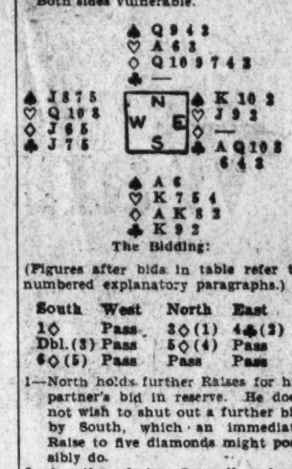
PERFECT GAME TECHNIQUE.

WHILE Duplicate play lacks the color that goes with the hard-ly fought rubber, there is no doubt that play of Bridge at Duplicate does have a strong tendency to perfect the technique of those participating in it. Hands at Duplicate are more apt to stand out in the minds of those participating in the game because of the fact that the same cards are played again and again and the postmortem discloses the differences in treatment and frequently points out to players the way in which a lost contract might have been made.

Recently, in a Duplicate game in Philadelphia, the cards were dealt as follows:

South—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1◇	Pass	3◇(1)	4♣(3)
Dbl.(2)	Pass	5◇(4)	Pass
6◇(5)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—North holds further Raises for his partner's bid in reserve. He does not wish to shut out a further bid by South, which an immediate Raise to five diamonds might possibly do.

2—A rather daring Overcall, vulnerable, although East holds a hand with which he does not wish to be entirely foreclosed.

3—South's holding suggests that a Penalty Double may be the best eventual declaration. It gives a better picture of the hand than would a Rebid of the diamonds at at this time.

4—North, with an extremely freakish distribution, prefers what appears like a sure game to a rather doubtful Penalty Double. North still envisions possibility of Slam, and this possibility is not decreased by the fact that South has made a Penalty Double of East's Overcall.

5—South's hand is considerably stronger in honor-tricks than his Opening bid indicated. His bid of six diamonds is entirely sound.

Mr. Levis R. Ayres played South at the table where the bidding followed the course indicated above. The Knave of clubs was opened by West and Mr. Ayres discarded a heart from Dummy. It was, of course, at once apparent that the hand could only be made through a squeeze, as to use Dummy's trumps to ruff the losing clubs would then leave the Declarer with one loser in hearts and one in spades. Instead of ruffing, Mr. Ayres discarded a heart from Dummy in order to safeguard himself against a loss of a trick in that suit.

With the cards in the Dummy and those in his own hand, it seemed certain that East's vulnerable Overcall of four clubs indicated possession of the spade King, as well as a long club suit. If this were true, a squeeze might be developed and the contract made; if not, then nothing South could do could avoid the loss of 2 tricks on the hand. East won the club trick with the Ace and led a heart. This was won with the Ace in Dummy and two rounds of diamonds taken, South retaining one of the high diamonds in his own hand. The King of hearts was then cashed and the third round of hearts was trumped in Dummy. South now returned to his own hand with a trump to lead the thirteenth heart and then led his last trump, which was won in the Dummy hand. The distribution of the cards then was:

Upon the lead of the diamond 9, East was hopelessly squeezed. If he parted with a spade, South, discarding after him, would discard the 9 of clubs. If he parted with a club, South would discard the spade 6. By careful planning, South had forced East's defense against the Slam contract to tumble.

TODAY'S POINTER.

The execution of squeeze plays generally requires the recognition very early in the hand of the probable development of the squeeze situation. Many contracts are lost through failure of the Declarer to realize in time the possibility of this play.

Tomorrow's Hand.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

THE NEW Jelleff's

Advice on Gardening

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

I HAVE a gloxinia which has bloomed for years. Last year it failed to bloom and the same thing happened this season. What do you suggest? ALICE McC.

Your gloxinia has likely outlived its usefulness. Better get a new bulb in the fall.

Last year my roses were ruined with insects. I want to avoid a repetition of this tragedy this year. Do you know of a really reliable spray?

MRS. A. R.

Spray with the following formula:

Arsenate of Lead Spray.

Three teaspoonfuls of arsenate of lead powder.
One ounce of any liquid soap.
One teaspoonful of nicotine sulphate.
A gallon of water.

These ingredients must be thoroughly mixed. As this formula contains poisons, the spray and its ingredients must be kept out of reach of children or other irresponsible persons.

Please tell me whether a Boston ivy injures a brick wall in any way. I am so fond of this ivy and yet my father insists that it always causes a wall to leak. ELLA D. W.

Your father is entirely mistaken. Boston ivy will never injure any stone or brick wall.

I am anxious to grow gourds. When shall I sow the seed?

MRS. PAUL R. H.

Seed must be sown at once. This is necessary in order to give them time to ripen before frost. They are liable, when first set out, to be eaten by cutworms and they should be protected by a bottomless tin can sunk into the ground 2 or 3 inches, care being taken that the soil within the can is free from worms. The gourds do not grow for some little time after setting out, as they are making roots, but once they begin they develop rapidly.

Bought a pink flowering crabapple last fall. It is only 3 feet high. Will it be likely to bloom this spring?

C. L. P.

No, I hardly think it will. A tree only 3 feet high is likely too young to bear blossoms.

What Today Means

"ARIES."

IF April 14 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this day are from 10:15 a. m. to 11:30 a. m., from 3:30 p. m. to 5 p. m. and from 9:45 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 7 a. m. to 8:45 a. m., and from 1:30 p. m. to 3 p. m.

Disappointments on the business side of life are augured for April 14, probably through the nonmaterialization of promised financial aid; other avenues of assistance must be sought. Happy influences will affect the more personal and social affairs of life. Good for artistic and literary fraternities; new ideas will be born.

Children born on this April 14 will have quiet, unimpulsive natures, and although they will never "set the Hudson on fire," they will most creditably take their place in the world. They will be sociable and of a good disposition, readily making friends and easily adapting themselves.

Born on April 14 you are a typical behind-the-scenes man or woman, happy to do your bit, in your own way, and preferring seclusion to the lime light. You do not have that genius for wide friendship possessed by many, but you will always have a few friends, both tried and true, who stand ready to share your joys and to lessen your sorrows.

You have a shrewd, quick brain, and a grasp of the serious affairs of the day in which you are keenly interested. You may not be a star performer yourself, but you are an enthusiastic praiser of star performances. People do not often talk over your head. Stubbornness is probably your most besetting sin; you hate to admit either error or defeat, and are a mournful loser. You would prosper best in association with or under control of another. You are too shy and reserved to make a good leader, but you are unbeatable as an ally. You are good at unraveling details and are not bored by routine duties.

You would make an ideal marriage partner for one who expects constancy, dependability and loyalty from their mate. You are extremely fond of home and children, and it is hard to drive you away from your own fireside, if it is a contented one.

Successful people born April 14:

John C. Green, founder of Green School of Sciences at Princeton.

Horace Bushnell, founder of Bushnell Park, Hartford.

Junius S. Morgan, banker.

Edgar S. Kelley, composer of music and professor of music at Yale University.

Milo Merrick Belding, silk manufacturer.

Claire Windsor, film artist.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

HYGIENE FOR MIDDLE AGE.

A CHICAGO surgeon of great renown, now 79 years old, gives his colleagues some advice on how to live to reach a hundred years of age, or thereabouts. This surgeon is a frail man, rather markedly underweight. In his childhood he developed tubercular glands in the neck, but they were left to the curative power of nature and they went away. A few years later other glands, this time under his arm, became enlarged. These were left alone and they disappeared when he was in midlife.

In his early manhood he had indigestion, but by care in his diet and his eating habits that disorder finally disappeared. He was underweight and had a moderate degre of anemia—80 per cent hemoglobin. He tried to bring himself up to the average in both of these particulars by dieting, in the main, but finally gave up the job and dismissed both underweight and anemia from his worries.

He began by learning from his father the value of exercise. Like his son, the father was a distinguished surgeon, but before he studied medicine he had been a tailor. When he was tired mentally he rested himself by cutting and making a suit of clothes. The son learned the lesson only in part. When he was young he had the habit of releasing the tension of his nerves by mountain climbing.

One by one he gave up strenuous athletics, such as tennis, swimming, horseback riding, mountain climbing and, finally, golf. He now depends on walking and Indian club exercises as his only measures for keeping his muscles and joints supple. The present plan of very mild, relaxed exercise he thinks superior to the tenser work of his youth, at least to a person of his make-up.

Several years ago Dr. R. H. Babcock told his friend, the surgeon, that his weak spot was his bronchial tubes and not his heart. This opinion the surgeon accepted and has given especial attention to protecting himself against bronchitis and pneumonia, usually by running away during the season when these maladies prevail, and by getting enough of relaxation and rest at all seasons.

He concludes with the following twelve rules for adult health, which a man need not be a doctor to profit by:

1. Moderation everywhere and every time.
2. Don't look upon your muscular strength and enthusiasm for work as proofs of continued good health and great endurance.
3. Don't let reckless rivals set the pace for you.
4. Don't ignore your limitations.
5. Don't commit slow suicide by overworking, overeating and overworrying.
6. Eat a little more each year until you are 30; after 40 eat a little less each year until you are 100.
7. It is safer in the end to be a sage rather than a Samson. It is unwise to be both.
8. Slightly underatze, slightly underweight and slightly under the weather conduce to longevity.
9. Few men die of starvation, but many men slowly eat themselves to death.
10. We seldom die of old age; we die of disease or other accidents.
11. Shun the germs of pneumonia. They lie in wait for the busy doctor.
12. Begin the quiet life before premature senility forces it upon you.

BOILING WATER.

Mrs. O. S. writes:

1. What is the value of boiling water before drinking it?
2. When one observes the accumulation of crusty substance on the inside of a tea kettle after boiling our city water, one can not help wondering if that same condition exists in the stomach when we drink unboiled water. REPLY.

1. It kills disease-producing bacteria if the water is polluted. In some places it is advisable to heat the water for this purpose. In most places it is not.

2. It does not. Boiling precipitates some of the so-called scale in hard waters. However, this does not precipitate from water in the digestive tract. As a rule hard waters are wholesome. However, some of them are too hard—alkali water, for example.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

Perfume Has Its Place in the Picture.

PERFUME has always been referred to as appealing to the emotions. It does fascinate, intrigue, appeal to the imagination. What there is about the spring season to awaken women to a desire for perfume I can't say, but judging by the letters pouring in to this desk more and more women are on the alert to discover "the right perfume."

Elsie Pierce.

The question "what perfume shall I use" is as difficult to answer as questions pertaining to colors or makeup. For the connoisseur takes into consideration her personality and type, the time of day, the occasion, even the fabric she intends wearing. One very fastidious woman I know has several exquisite odors and varies them according to her moods. "Every woman has several selves," she says, "and perfume is one way to let them all have expression."

Some women have achieved remarkable success in their use of perfume. They may have several distinctive scents, a faint, delicate odor for morning, a little heavier for afternoon tea, a musk, woodsy perfume for sports clothes and furs, a delicate bouquet odor with semiformal chiffons, and a rare, exotic perfume for formal functions. But, regardless of the number of different perfumes they own, there is one thing smart modern women have learned and that is, not to mix or superimpose harmonious odors. As a matter of fact, more and more toilet goods manufacturers are using only the faintest suggestion of perfume in creams, lotions, powders and rouges so that the various scents will not be strong enough to clash, and furthermore so that if a woman wishes to use a predominating toilet water, sachet or perfume the odors in her facial preparations will not conflict with the chosen perfume.

Temperament and Type.

Coloring is important, as most blondes are flattered by delicate floral odors, but more than color temperament and personality must be considered, as many a blonde has a vibrant, intense personality, and many a brunette has the placid, cool nature often attributed to blondes. Age is another important factor, as it stands to reason that a young girl should not use the heavy odors becoming to more mature types.

Remember all these hints when looking for a perfume that will flatter and express you. Surround yourself with the perfume that seems to please you most, and be sure, too, that others are equally pleased. And then, just as soon as the perfume becomes too familiar to those around you, make some sort of a subtle change. Perfume should carry a hint of mystery with it, like a spring breeze; intriguing, now here, now gone; but enough to make its delightful impression on the senses.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES McDONALD

The Girl Is Right.

DEAR MRS. McDONALD: Reading continuously the tales of woe submitted and your advice, I, too, have a perplexing tale.

I am a youth in the early twenties. I have been keeping the company of a very respectable girl of my own age. She is sociable, quiet, poor, seemingly honest, faithful, and, to the best of my knowledge, strictly true. In her actions and words, she loves me truly. She will be an ideal girl for any man who has taste for character and personality. She has no habits unbecoming in a girl.

In turn, I am square and true, give her whatever she wants, that is, within reason, but her wants are so few. I am of a saving nature, have a good trade, and earn slightly higher than the average wage. I am considered a well-dressed man, of good character, personality, and do not smoke, drink, chew or gamble. Now besides this, for several years I have been studying a different phase of life, to advance myself from my present trade, and without question will be repaid for my time and effort. But it will take about two years to accomplish this task. And then more advanced study a year or so longer. If I should marry, I most likely would have to discontinue this study and therefore continue my present trade. But I was satisfied to sacrifice this study and loss for the love of this dear girl. In turn she does not want me to stop the study and would even go so far as to cease my company entirely that I may continue. I am hurt and my friend very badly hurt at heart.

But what can I do. Can't you please help me cipher this problem? It is a lifetime question both ways. I am at a loss. I shall wait patiently for your kind advice and answer to appear in the column of woe and wisdom. JUST ANOTHER ONE.

Why all the commotion? You seem to have found everything. The girl of your dreams and all that your heart desires is willing to wait while you realize your ambition in life. What more could human ask in this world where few find very much?

Surely you are not at odds with the girl because she refuses to stand between you and the goal you had in view when you met. She seems to our almost cynical gaze to be even more than human. Our advice to you is to go to the girl, tell her that whatever she says is law, and then go on with your life. Should you marry now and give up the thing upon which your heart has been so long set, you would eventually regret and unconsciously in your heart feel that the girl was to blame.

Pursue your work. Love the girl the more for her intelligence and try to demonstrate an intelligence of your own equal to hers. Two years is not a lifetime. But many a life has been spoiled in less!

STUDENTS TO HONOR SHAHAN WITH MASS

Catholic Mission Crusade Plans Memorial Event to Late Bishop.

A solemn high mass of requiem for the repose of the soul of the late Bishop Shahan, rector emeritus of Catholic University, will be celebrated in the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

Arrangements for the mass are being made by the local conference of the Catholic Students' Mission Crusade, in grateful appreciation of Bishop Shahan's many kindnesses to them. He was the first ecclesiastic to be a national president of the organization and was also instrumental in arranging for its first national convention to be held in Washington. The Right Rev. John M. McNamara, Auxiliary Bishop of Baltimore, will preside. The sermon will be given by the Right Rev. Mgr. Bernard A. McKenna, D. D., and the mass will be sung by the Rev. Louis C. Vaeth.

Those participating in the ceremonies are: Deacon, the Rev. Samuel J. Matthews, S. J.; subdeacon, the Rev. Guntram O. Scheffold, S. D. S.; master of ceremonies, the Rev. John Tarrant, C. S. P.; acolytes, Augustinian students and the Friars of the Atonement.

The Sulpician Choir will sing the mass.

The Crusaders will make up the greater portion of those attending. A delegation from the Catholic University Conference of Religious and Clerics, as well as members of the faculty and student body of the university, will be present. The parochial schools have been invited and a large attendance is expected.

The committee in charge of the arrangements is composed of the following members of the Catholic Students' Mission Crusade:

Chairman, William Spates, St. John's College; assistant chairman, Catherine Dargan, St. Cecilia's Academy; Nellie McCormack, Vaeth Unit; Mary Curtin, St. Cecilia's Academy; Louise Brew, St. Patrick's Academy; Mary Keehan, Notre Dame Academy; Mary Catherine Connell, St. Paul's Academy; Anna May Brady, St. Paul's Academy; John O'Connell, Shahan Unit; Bernard Loyd, St. John's College; J. Assaulted Students Will Sue Officers

Arkansas College Group Gives Case to Kentucky Lawyer.

Cumberland Gap, Tenn., April 13 (A.P.).—Commonwealth College's delegation of five who sought in vain to give relief to needy Kentucky miners, announced today they would take legal action against officers and citizens of Bell and Harlan Counties for beatings administered Sunday.

They did not reveal who would be named in their action nor in what court it would be filed. W. J. Stone, Pineville, Ky., attorney, met the delegation here and arranged to handle the litigation. They were accompanied by Dr. John R. Neal, Knoxville, Tenn., attorney.

After the conference with Stone, the collegians headed back toward Knoxville with intentions of proceeding on to Mena, Ark., where Commonwealth College is located. Sam Sandberg, treasurer of the expedition, said a $122.39 relief fund they collected has been distributed among needy families in this vicinity.

Woman Wins First Suit Under New Crash Law

Baltimore, April 13 (A.P.).—Mrs. Amelia Burroughs, of Baltimore, was awarded $2,000 damages by a jury in Superior Court today in her suit against Samuel R. Chisman, of Hampton, Va., for injuries suffered in an automobile accident. The action was brought against Chisman following an accident on the Washington boulevard last July 5.

The verdict was believed to be the first under the new State law allowing nonresidents to be sued in automobile cases by serving court papers on the Secretary of State.

CREDIT WAVE BACKED BY FEDERAL RESERVE

sistance to banks in difficulties because of depressed security prices.

The view was expressed that with the corporation taking care of smaller banks, the large and strong banks should stop calling perfectly good loans and launch instead a wave of credit.

Harrison told the House committee that since the passage of the Glass-Steagall bill the banks had bought $245,000,000 in Government securities at the rate of about $25,000,000 a week. He then added:

"We have had a meeting and the program will be greatly stimulated both as to volume and as to rate."

Those most familiar with the reserve system viewed yesterday's announcement as the beginning of a new effort to turn the tide of deflation. By a strong open market policy, it was said, the system could enable member banks to repay their borrowings from the Federal banks at a more rapid rate, thus making funds now tied up in such borrowings available for investment or loans to customers.

Price Stabilization Backed.

Representative Bankhead yesterday announced the House Democratic leadership would sponsor the Goldsborough bill directing the Federal Reserve Board to increase and stabilize commodity prices as a means of relieving the economic situation throughout the country.

Bankhead is one of the Democratic leaders. He said "what the people of this country are interested in is to pay debts and to get work," and added the Goldsborough bill would do it.

The Goldsborough bill, which Gov. George L. Harrison, of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, opposed yesterday before the House banking committee, would call for a reestablishment of commodity prices "as speedily as possible to the level existing before the present deflation."

Tiny Baby Dies After Ten-Day Fight.

Quincy, Mass., April 13 (A.P.).—Violet Younie, who weighed less than 20 ounces at birth ten days ago, died today. The child had been kept alive by feeding her warm milk and water with an eye-dropper.

Man Tries to Rescue Savings in Fire; Killed

Trapped in a burning house when he ran into it to recover $35, Charles Valentine, colored, was burned to death yesterday in his home on Ethan Allen avenue, near Takoma Park, Md. Judge John A. Downing issued a certificate of accidental death.

Valentine and several other colored persons had been making their home in the old Ruppert house. He left it when it caught fire yesterday, supposedly from a faulty flue. Remembering his savings which were stored in an upper room, he went back for them and was caught when the roof caved in. Damage is estimated at $7,500.

Senate Group Favors Oddie Postoffice Bill

(Associated Press.)

The Senate postoffice committee yesterday reported favorably on a bill by Chairman Oddie (Republican), Nevada, to prevent the Postoffice Department from printing or selling stamped envelopes with return address spaces printed in the corner.

The committee noted "it is timely that the postal laws be amended to remove the department as a competitor of comercial printers and publishers," and said the measure would aid employment.

CONDON SCOURING NEW YORK TO RENEW KIDNAP CONTACT

He then entered his car and drove away while the man he met at the corner entered another car and departed.

The license number of the closed car showed it to be the property of a publishing company.

Col. Henry Breckinridge, attorney to Col. Lindbergh, called at the Condon home in the late afternoon, and it was believed he had seen the educator. Later it was learned that Dr. Condon had departed by a rear entrance before Col. Breckinridge arrived and that the attorney had not waited for his return. Col. Breckinridge expressed great annoyance at the crowds attracted to Dr. Condon's home.

Another phase of the private search for the baby came into prominence when police admitted that John Hughes Curtis, one of the Norfolk, Va., trio of intermediaries, had visited Col. Lindbergh again yesterday. Both he and Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, his associate, saw Col. Lindbergh Monday. Announcement of their visit was made at Norfolk by the third member of the trio, the Very Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock.

Maj. Charles H. Schoeffel, of the New Jersey State police, unexpectedly arrived in Vienna on the secret mission connected with the case, which took him abroad several weeks ago.

A man giving the name of D. D. Dickerson, of New York, was detained at St. Thomas, Ontario, when police found he had letters addressed to the Lindberghs. He explained he merely was sending suggestions for locating the child and the importance of this development appeared negligible.

Fleischer Sought in Canada.

The Royal Canadian Mounted police were asked to aid in apprehending Harry Fleischer, Detroit gangster, long sought for questioning and now believed to be seeking to board a boat for abroad, possibly from Halifax, Nova Scotia.

A mystery message saying the child was aboard a boat at a certain point in New Jersey proved to be another erroneous "tip" upon investigation.

Norfolk, Va., April 13 (A.P.).—An optimistic Episcopal dean, the Very Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, today said he had reason to believe progress was being made by his Norfolk associates in their effort to recover the kidnaped Lindbergh baby.

While refusing to divulge the reasons for his belief, Dean Dobson-Peacock admitted that he had received a communication since yesterday from John Hughes Curtis, who has been absent on a mysterious mission for several days. It was learned that Curtis visited Col. Lindbergh last night, but the whereabouts of Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, third of the Norfolk negotiators, has not been revealed.

Dean Sees New Contact.

Dean Dobson-Peacock, radiating optimism, interpreted the prolonged absence of his associates as indicative of progress and a new contact with those they believe to be the kidnapers of the child.

"I would imagine that a new contact has been made but I don't know," he said.

It was reported several days ago that Mr. Curtis had visited Col. Lindbergh and the report of the second visit was accepted as another sign of progress by the dean.

The Norfolk intermediaries have maintained faith in the persons with whom they have been negotiating despite the payment by Col. Lindbergh of $50,000 ransom to persons he believed identified as the real kidnapers. Dean Dobson-Peacock refused to affirm or deny rumors that the Norfolk intermediaries had feared a hoax would be worked on Col. Lindbergh, and had warned him of it.

"WHY DIDN'T I SAVE $15.80 On My Automobile Insurance?"

CONSIDER THESE SAVINGS
in this $23,000,000 Company
This chart shows how much the Liberty Mutual dividend has reduced the cost of complete insurance on cars in Washington. Liberty Mutual has paid 20% dividends off standard rates to every policyholder every year for 20 years.

UP TO $15.80	UP TO $12.00	UP TO $10.79

Monthly payments, if desired

"WHY SHOULD I pay $15.80 more for my car insurance than my friends who buy their insurance direct from Liberty Mutual?

"My broker doesn't like it. That's natural because the Liberty won't pay him a commission. They sell direct and pass along the savings to you in dividends. Liberty Mutual spends only one-third as much as other companies spend to sell a dollar's worth of automobile insurance.

"Liberty Mutual accepts insurance from careful drivers only. This reduces accidents and results in further savings for policyholders.

"Liberty Mutual has no stockholders. It pays all dividends to its policyholders in cash.

"This plan would have saved me $15.80 on the insurance of my Cadillac in 1931.

"Liberty Mutual has an unbroken record of earning and paying 20% dividends off standard rates to its policyholders for 20 years and has added substantial sums to surplus and reserves each year. The company now has assets of over $23,000,000 and is the largest mutual liability insurance company in the country. 99% of its cases are settled without trial in court, which proves that Liberty Mutual must be fair and prompt in making settlements.

"Liberty Mutual has more than 100,000 policyholders—responsible, careful-driving car-owners. They have saved over $32,000,000 for their policyholders—and I could just as well have had my share of it."

12,000 Watch Equipoise Triumph

Whitney Stable Star Sets Track Mark for 5 Furlongs.

Beats Hygro by Half Length in Comeback Test.

By WALTER HAIGHT.

LIGHT blue and brown—Sonny Workman — Equipoise — Whata stable! Whata jockey! Whata horse! Yes, siree. They sent Equipoise back to the races yesterday at Bowie. They picked the Au Revoir Handicap for him. But Au Revoir didn't mean good-by to the C. V. Whitney star, it meant the birth of a new campaign, a season crowded with victories, or horsemen will miss their guess. For Equipoise came back yesterday; back with a track record, back in a driving finish that justified being made a favorite despite an impost of 126 pounds.

True, few good horses have had a chance at the 5 furlong mark at Bowie. Air Pilot set a record of 1:01 for the sprint earlier in the meeting. The Whitney star c[illegible] the mark 1 3-5 seconds to 0:59 2-5, where many believe it will stay for some time.

Equipoise Filled Out Since Last Year.

Equipoise looked like a picture horse on the way to the post—a credit to Trainer Freddie Hopkins. The Pennant colt has filled out since last season, when he went wrong on the eve of the Derby after as hard a season the year before as any 2-year-old has been asked to face.

Equipoise broke in fifth position as Hygro and On Tap battled for the lead. Workman began moving his mount up at the far turn and Equipoise moved around on the outside.

Hygro and On Tap were still struggling on the swing around the stretch turn, but it was evident by now that Equipoise was to be dealt with. On Tap dropped back as the field straightened out and the Whitney star moved up to take up the chief running with Hygro. The latter managed to keep a head in front to the eighth pole, but Workman did not have to punish his mount. Equipoise seemed to drift away from Hygro to take the decision by a half length.

Thus the show was stolen from the $5,000 added Baltimore Spring Handicap.

Malone Holds Reds As Cubs Score, 3 to 2

Cincinnati, April 13 (A.P.).—Slugging tactics by the Cincinnati Reds could not overcome Malone today and the Chicago Cub pitcher walked off with a 3-to-2 victory. The result tied the series thus far at a game each.

The Reds bunched a double, a single and a triple in the fourth to jump into the lead, but Malone kept them under cover thereafter while his team-mates pecked at Carroll for hits that gave them the winning run in the eighth on two singles.

Grantham, a Cincinnati ace, injured his left ankle in the sixth in stopping Gudat's drive and was carried from the field.

CAMERA SLANTS AT SPORTS

Life of the horse hasn't been so tough since the trolley was electrified and those heavy old-fashioned beer wagons disappeared. In fact, in some circumstances the life is quite pleasant. None of the ponies of the University of Arizona girls' polo team has registered any kicks. At least, the coeds haven't reported them. Above is a lucky favorite being given a manicure by Fawn Weaver, diminutive star.

Notre Dame gridders are busy in spring practice at South Bend, Ind., trying to learn line play with pushes to the face barred by the new rules. Picture above reveals Joe Kurth and Jim Harris wrestling with the problem. In the background is Coach "Hunk" Anderson explaining. The game won't be as "he-manish," but it'll be safer. That's the big idea.

Polish Giant, Londos Mix Tonight

Pinetzki Biggest Foe Mat Champ Has Ever Met.

Record Crowd Looked for at Auditorium.

THE most important rassling match ever staged indoors in Washington will be offered tonight to what probably will be the biggest crowd ever to cram into Washington Auditorium, when Jim Londos, generally conceded to be the champion of mat champions, meets the mountainous Leo Pinetzki.

Pinetzki, who outweighs Londos by 80 pounds and has an abnormal reach of 8 feet, is 6 feet 8 and the biggest man associated with sport. Londos, unbeaten in almost two years of active competition, faces one of his biggest assignments in tossing Pinetzki, who has lost only to Dick Shikat, former champion, since coming to the United States four months ago.

Pinetzki to Be Londos' Biggest Foe.

Pinetzki is the biggest man Londos has ever met. The mighty little Greek will be called upon to extend himself to the limit even to lift the Polish monstrosity, much less throw him. Physically the odds are much in favor of Pinetzki, but there has been no concentrated rush to bet on the Polish Corridor.

This modern version of the old David and Goliath feud will be supported by a preliminary bill in which Promoter Turner has shuffled his cards and produced brand-new combinations. In order to do this he has snubbed many of the perennial local boys in favor of a new group of huskies, several of them recently imported from the Bowser ranks.

Tony De Vito, a harsh hombre who held Londos to a draw three years back and claims victories over Sonnenberg and a couple of others, will meet another toughy in George McLeod. Fred Grobmeier, one of the most popular men ever to show here, is down to meet Frank Speers. Their tableaux a month ago resulted in a victory for Grobmeier when Speers knocked himself out on a fall from the ring.

Cantonwine to Tackle George Hagen.

Howard Cantonwine, a Bowser importation of some note, meets George Hagen, while George Manich, who rassled Londos here the last time, has to do with one Oscar Negrin.

Pinetzki is by far the most interesting growler Londos has been booked to meet in Washington. The handsome Greek will be making his fourth appearance here this year tonight. His victims in Washington to date are Kirilenko, Szabo, and Manich.

Heydler Aims For Later Opening

National League Chief Would eDlay Season Until April 20.

Cold Weather Hinders Baseball; Others Like Plan.

CINCINNATI, April 13 (U.P.).—John A. Heydler, president of the National League, announced today that he believes the time has arrived to select a later opening date and a later closing date for the major league season.

Heydler's announcement followed one of the most depressing inaugural days in the history of modern baseball, when appallingly small crowds attended Tuesday's opening games because of cold, wet weather. Moreover, the leagues were faced with possibilities of prolonged unfavorable playing conditions.

"In the last few years, the weather has changed so that in the middle of April it is a 10-to-1 gamble that it will be impossible to open the season on schedule time under anything like favorable conditions in any of the Northern cities of the major leagues," President Heydler said. "Moreover, the weather also is a big gamble in the Southern cities of the two circuits at this time of the year.

"Pittsburgh has encountered snow each of the last few years as late as April 20, and it is usually May 1 before the weather generally is suited to baseball in major league territory.

"We would encounter the most trouble in arranging a later opening in Philadelphia, which is the only city with two teams where baseball is not allowed on Sunday.

Clubs Close Season Early.

"As it is, the two Philadelphia clubs must crowd 154 games into 143 playing dates this year. We are closing the season on September 25 this year, but I believe it will be advisable to select a later opening date and also a later closing date in future years. By a later opening the clubs could shorten their training season, now too long, by about two weeks."

President Heydler's announcement met with varied reaction from league presidents, and William Harridge, president of the American League, disagreed with him.

Harridge said: "I feel that our present schedule is an ideal one. It's all a gamble on the weather in the early weeks, and even if we opened two weeks later the weather might be just as bad as it is now, sometimes in early April."

Frank B. York, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, said: "Although it's always a gamble on the weather, I believe it would be a good thing to open later and close later. Unquestionably the weather has changed during the past few years, with poor weather early in the season and good weather in September. The crowds will not turn out in bad weather."

Sidney Weil, president of the Cincinnati Reds, said: "I am opposed to later opening and closing of the baseball season. Spring weather always is a gamble, and there is no assurance that a later opening would help the situation. It seems the best baseball business is done early in the season. After January 1, the public gets hungry for baseball, and the sooner we give it to them, the better. Later closing would conflict with football."

American League Head Rules Out Zebra Bat

Chicago, April 13 (A.P.).—Standing on the unwritten law of baseball that a bat shall be of natural wood, and the belief that it would be neither wise nor profitable to let the game get too "batty," President William Harridge of the American League today ruled out the camouflage or zebra bat.

President Harridge did this at a conference with Willis Johnson, secretary of the St. Louis Browns, who devised the war club, and "Goose" Goslin, who carried it to the plate in the opening game of the season here yesterday, only to have it thrown out by the umpires.

Johnson readily agreed with President Harridge that it came under the head of trickery, which the league frowned on when it eliminated the white web in the pitcher's glove, the slitting of a pitcher's sleeve and the hidden-ball trick.

BOB HARLOW QUITS.

Chicago, April 13 (A.P.)—Robert E. Harlow today resigned as manager of the Professional Golfers of America Tournament Bureau.

Albert R. Gates, business administrator of the P. G. A., said the open tournament winter season, recently concluded at Pinehurst, was one of the most successful in history. For the present the tournament bureau will be conducted from the main office, under Gates' direction.

IN THE WAKE OF THE GAME

Special to The Washington Post.

BOSTON, Mass., April 13.—Marberry struck out five during his six innings against the Red Sox today, but on the other side of his ledger were seven hits, of which five were doubles.

Heinie Manush almost tore McManus' glove off his hand with a liner to the second baseman in the third inning, but Marty held the ball.

The Nats got a break on their run in the fifth that tied the score at 3 to 3. Myer was on third when West bounced to Russell. Russell tossed to Rhyne at second and Rhyne would have retired the side on a double play had he not tripped over the bag in an effort to avoid Heinie Manush, who came into the base standing up.

Heinie Manush climbed far up the left field bank after Webb's double in the sixth, falling prone on his back in the attempt while the ball sailed beyond his outstretched glove.

Sam Rice, pinch hitting for Marberry in the seventh, was robbed of a clean hit when his slap through the box struck the pitcher's rubber and bounded into Rhyne's hands.

Brown averted further trouble for the Nats in the seventh when he coolly fielded McManus' hot shot into the box and caught Rhyne, who had stolen second, between the bases; Bluege tagging him out in the run down.

Fischer's one inning appearance today will not upset Manager Johnson's pitching plans for tomorrow, when he will send the swift left-hander back into the box against the Red Sox. Montie Weaver is due to hurl here Friday.

Lloyd Brown, who allowed one hit

Outfielder Again Her Marberry Falters in First Start.

Brown and Fischer Effective; Small Crowd at Game.

By SHIRLEY L. POVICH (Sports Editor of The Post).

BOSTON, Mass., April 13.—The Red Sox this afternoon celebrated the start of their opening ball game at home amid official dignity, and the Nats won it in a story book finish by a score of 7 to 6. It was the old setting. Two were out in the ninth. The Nats were two runs behind. Runners were camping at the bags at first and second, when Herr Heinie Manush injected himself into the proceedings as the villain of the piece—or the hero, from a Washington viewpoint.

Two strikes were across the pan. So were two balls. There were two out and Herr Heinie was number two batter. Deuces literally were wild on the scoreboard when Slim Jack Russell flung the third strike toward the plate. It never reached the platter. Big Herr Heinie intercepted it on the end of his bat and rocketed the ball far into the open bleachers in right field for a home run.

Heinie gleefully traveled around the bases following Roy Spencer and Buddy Myer home with the vital runs. It was a cruel denial of victory for the Red Sox and young Jack Russell, who had permitted only six hits until the ninth. Boston had rustled seven hits and six runs off big Fred Marberry in six innings to gain a 6-to-3 lead which it carried into the fateful ninth.

Russell Fails to Protect Lead.

The game was Russell's to have and to hold, according to his performance in the ninth, but with one out he faltered and the contest crashed down about his ears a moment later and the Nats tonight lead the American League with their two victories and no defeats, both accomplished at the expense of the Red Sox and at the instance of Manush's bat, which also won the opener in Washington on Monday. To the Red Sox, Herr Heinie is just an aggravated pain in their collective necks.

Ossie Bluege went out tamely enough to open the Nats' ninth with a foul pop to Berry, but little Johnny Kerr began paying dividends on the Nats' trade with the White Sox last winter by whistling a clean single to center to start off the rally. At this point, Russell's support failed him when Rhyne allowed Spencer's hard hit grounder to trickle through his legs, and men were on first and third.

The stage was set for a pinch hitter for Lloyd Brown, who had relieved Marberry in the sixth, and the job was delegated to Sheriff Dave Harris, who connected with a long fly to center field and Bluege scored from third. But now two were out, and the Nats were still two runs behind, with only one man on base.

Myer Draws Walk From Russell.

But Buddy Myer put the tying run in the paths when he coaxed a walk from Russell and drew up the scenery for Herr Heinie's piece de resistance of the afternoon. Heinie took the cue, two balls and two strikes, and then larroped the next pitch into the stands like a good Thespian.

Then it was Carl Fischer's ball game to protect. The big left-hander was Johnson's choice to preserve the Nats' 1-run lead, and he did the job nobly. Pinch Hitter Warstler rolled out to Johnny Kerr. Rothrock had a three-and-nothing count on Fischer when the left-hander summoned his control to slip over two strikes and then force Rothrock to roll to Kerr for the second out. Hal Rhyne singled over second base, but Marty McManush celebrated the denouncement with a foul pop to Roy Spencer.

Fewer than 5,000 literally dyed-in-the-wool fans saw the opening game festivities. They had to be that type to withstand the frigidity of this April day in Boston. But they were denied the programmed festivities when neither Gov. Ely nor Mayor Curley put in an appearance for their collaboration in tossing out the first ball. It seemed that the special steps leading out of the grand stand for the official first-ball throwers were a needless convenience, but Secretary of the State Treasury Charles Hurley finally was drafted to perform that service, and it was a right smart heave he made to Manager John Collins.

Previously Old Glory had been hoisted to the center field flagpole. Al Schacht, with a 2-ton bat, and Nick Altrock, in fleece-lined and fur-collared great coat, topped by a foraging cap, and wearing fur gloves, led the parade to the flag raising. All that was needed to complete the North Pole tableau was a dog sled rushing serum into the park for frost-bitten fans. But they went on with the show.

For three innings Marberry was 12,000 See Delayed Opener; Detroit Makes 5 Errors.

DETROIT, April 13 (A.P.).—Cleveland and Detroit played a torrid eleven-inning baseball game in frigid weather here today, Cleveland winning, 6 to 5, before 12,000 spectators, the smallest American League opening day crowd here in fifteen years.

Wesley Ferrell went the route for the Indians, allowing fourteen hits, but tightening in the pinches. One of the Tiger hits was a home run by Roy Johnson to start the first inning.

Vic Sorrell started for Detroit, allowing eight hits in as many innings before he was removed for a pinch batsman, who was none other than Dale Alexander, supplanted first baseman. He flied out.

Two Hits and Sacrifice Break Up Game.

Hogsett finished for the Tigers, yielding three hits, two of them singles by Porter and Averill in the eleventh, which, coupled with a sacrifice by Hodapp, produced the winning run. Chilled fingers resulted in six errors, five of them by the Tigers.

Jolley Batting Ace As Chisox Triumph

Gets Three Hits While Browns Are Being Beaten, 7 to 3.

Chicago, April 13 (A.P.).—St. Louis outhit the Chicago White Sox today but the renovated Hose bunched their blows and took advantage of a Brown error to win their second straight game, 7 to 3.

Dick Coffman and Bob Cooney were solved for nine blows, while Tommy Thomas, receiving fine support, was touched for a dozen blows. Smead Jolley banged out three hits to lead the White Sox attack.

SUBSTITUTE READY FOR BOROTRA

Marcel Bernard Replaces Basque in Cup Defense.

PARIS, April 13 (A.P.).—Capt. Rene Lacoste, who is already mapping his campaign for defense of the Davis Cup, will replace Jean Borotra with young Marcel Bernard—if the Basque veteran really retires.

Borotra came back from the United States to make his annual announcement that for him Davis Cup tennis was a thing of the past. The Basque said he "ought not" to play again this year. Memories of two defeats in last year's challenge round were no doubt uppermost in his mind.

But this news did not trouble the nerveless Lacoste. From a golf course in the south of France, where his wife is teaching him how to become a champion golfer, Lacoste sent word to Paris that unless Borotra changed his mind, Marcel Bernard, the hope of all young French hopes, will don the famous Basque beret and try to win as Borotra did.

Lacoste Confident Of Retaining Cup.

"Why shouldn't we win?" LaCoste asked. "Henri Cochet will win his two singles matches, and Cochet and Jacques Brugnon can take the doubles. That is all that is necessary. Bernard will have two excellent seasoning matches."

Lacoste repeated he had stopped practicing tennis and that he would not reenter Davis Cup play.

Bernard comes from the textile city of Roubaix, on the France-Belgian frontier. He has been swinging his racquet all winter on the Riviera and is in fine shape to start the international season.

The French expect to meet their old enemies, the United States, in the challenge round. Since the British Davis Cup outfit faded completely away during a series of covered courts intercity matches with France this winter, Cochet, Brugnon and Lacoste made up their minds to prepare for another American invasion. They believe that the United States will carry the day against Britain in the interzone final.

Maranville Dislikes Rule That Puts Gag on Players

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, April 13 (A.P.).—Little Rabbit Maranville is a sociable soul, and there is nothing he values quite so highly as friendship. Now he's afraid he's going to lose not only the friends but the friendly enemies he has developed in twenty years of infielding around the National League circuit.

"It's that new rule the league put in—no talking to friends in the stands, no talking to rival ball players, no anything friendly and pleasant any more," he said mournfully today as he perched in a hotel lobby chair.

"What are they trying to do to baseball, anyway? It's getting like office work, and you can't even talk to the rest of the clerks."

"Just think of it. If I walk over to the stands and say hello to my wife, I get a $5 fine slapped on me. And can you imagine what would happen to me if I didn't?

Mrs. Maranville, waiting for "The Rab" to take her to the movies because of the postponement of the Braves-Brooklyn game, smiled.

"I'll forgive you for all the $5 you save that way," she offered.

"All right," argued the Rabbit, "but look what it does to baseball. You can't sign scorecards for kids, or baseballs any more, something that's been making friends for the game for years. Even a manager can't talk to his own club owner, unless the owner is in the box next to the dugout. Suppose the owner was making a tr away well and was back in the field. B'ar Hunter shook off Snobful and gave Royal Ruffian a chase. Lightning Bolt worked up on the outside to take third money.

Some twelve thousand witnessed the program, including Gov. Albert C. Ritchie.

The opening race for maiden 2-year-olds proved a parade for Tinema, the property of J. P. Jones. Corrymeela was second and Mme. Snob, a field horse, third. The veteran McTaggart gave the High Time filly a hustling ride from start to finish, making every post a winning one. There was nothing in the race that could compete with Tinema, which led by six lengths entering the stretch and had a three-length advantage at the finish. Tinema's victory was not anticipated and the filly paid off with a $34.60 mutuel.

Fervor Rewards Choice Players.

Fervor gladdened the hearts of the favorite players by doing the expected in the second race, a six-furlong sprint. Paddock took second money with Lampoon, a field horse, in third place. Jimmy Smith was forced to wade Fervor through the field coming up the back stretch. The Broomstick colt was equal to the task and took command midway of the turn into the stretch to score an easy victory.

The old and honorable The Heathen stretched his 8-year-old legs to defeat the field of platers in the third race. The horse, running now in the interests of the B. B. Stables, proved as popular as ever with Bowie crowds and went postward with the odds board showing him an 8-to-5 favorite. Those figures were certainly justified, as later developments proved.

The race became a battle between Al Green and The Heathen soon after the break. Al Green had to race Wild Kitty into defeat before The Heather took up the issue. In the stretch drive, Al Green stopped suddenly as if ailing and was no match for the driving veteran. Clear Knight had to work his way up to third place.

in command of the situation, permitting neither a hit nor a run, and striking out three as the Red Sox went down in order.

Meanwhile the Nats had scored twice on their own account. Carl Reynolds and Joe Judge led off the second inning with clean singles and both scored when Johnny Kerr, who is fast becoming a valuable adjunct, dropped a Texas League single into center.

The Sox fell upon Marberry in the fourth to the extent of three runs to take the lead. Rothrock opened up with the first of five doubles during Marberry's tenure. Hal Rhyne walked. McManus sacrificed the runners along and Webb scored Rothrock on a fly to Manush. Pickering scored Rhyne with a double to left and Van Camp scored Pickering with a single to right. Bluege's single to left with two out availed the Nats nothing in the fourth, but the Nats tied the score on one hit in the fifth. With one out, Myer walked, and went to third on Manush's single to right. He scored while Russell was turning West's bouncer to the box into a force play at second.

in two innings after relieving Marberry and before he himself was relieved by Fischer in the ninth, goes down as the winning pitcher today.

"Sally Ann" was a conspicuous figure on the Nats bench today. Trainer Mike Martin dug Sally out of the luggage for the use of the pitchers between innings and they were the only warm gentlemen in the stadium, wrapped as they were in this fleece-lined, fur-collared great coat which hung to the ankles. Altrock wore it on the parade to the flag pole and was a riot.

FERVOR, sailed forwardly until leaving the back stretch, went into a winning lead midway of the turn and, saving ground through the final stages, had enough left to stall off PADDOCK. Latter, well placed in the early running, closed willingly under punishment when the final drive came. LAMPOON, a forward factor all the way, held on well when put to a drive. THE HEATHEN, rushed into a forward position, came determinedly when reaching the home stretch and, finishing gamely, was up in the final fifty yards. AL GREEN raced WILD KITTY into submission in the first half mile, saved ground when taking command, but tired suddenly in the closing sixteenth mile. CLEAR KNIGHT, hard ridden the entire trip, continued with good courage for the final test. FIFE, away well, was taken up sharply after the break, moved up on the outside when rounding the turn and closed stoutly. WILD KITTY tired after showing early speed. LITTLE GYP met with no mishaps. ANCODA struck horses heels when leaving the back stretch, stumbled and unseated his rider.

EQUIPOISE, away well and kept under stout urging in the early racing, circled his opposition when approaching the home stretch and, vigorously ridden through the home stretch, wore HYGRO down inside the final furlong. HYGRO, displaying early speed, raced ON TAP into defeat in the first half mile, came out into the firmer footing when entering into the home stretch and continued stoutly when challenged. B'AR HUNTER, away clear and going into an early lead, was rated along under slight restraint, shook off repeated efforts from SNOBFUL and, drawing into a safe lead midway of the home stretch, had speed in reserve at the finish. ROYAL RUFFIN, kept under pressure in the early running, made a determined effort approaching the stretch turn, but was not good enough. LIGHTNING BOLT, unprepared for the break, broke in a tangle and was shuffled back going to the first turn, was taken to the outside in the final half mile and closed gamely under severe punishment. SNOBFUL forced a good pace for six furlongs and tired. QUILLAN finished strong. DUCHESS OF MARLBOROUGH, under restraint early, was held safe when put to a drive. Two-dollar mutuels paid—THE DOCTOR, $13.20, $6.90, $4.00; TAZEWELL, $31.90, $8.70; RUANE, $2.80.

THE DOCTOR, avoiding interference at the first turn, sprinted into a long lead when settled in the back stretch and had speed in reserve at the finish. TAZEWELL worked his way up gamely when put to a drive and came willingly to outstay RUANE. Latter, in much trouble and taken up going to the first turn, went to the outside in the final half mile and finished willingly. STRONGHEART, in a bad jam at the first turn, raced into contention, but faltered from his early efforts. ENRO, shuffled back at the first turn, finished stoutly when clear. ANGRY LASS lacked early speed. GENIAL HOST had a rough trip. CHARLES D. JR. and GOLDEN BUCK stopped.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TOREALONG, $9.10, $5.40, $3.20; ZEAL, $5.60, $3.50; THE BREAK, $3.70.

TOREALONG began slowly, worked his way into contention when taken to the outside in the final half mile, wore ZEAL down rapidly and drew out as if much the best. ZEAL, kept under urging in the early running, drew clear when put to a drive rounding the far turn, but weakened badly in the final drive. THE BREAK, well up from the beginning, was easily best of the others. LADY BIENVILLE closed a big gap. BOB SHANNON could not menace the leaders. JORICO raced well under poor handling. MY BETTY was shuffled back early. TRAUFEY, JIMMY D. and BILLY BAUGHN quit.

Taris had been regarded as an almost certain point-winner.

St. Joseph's Nine Plays At Front Royal Today

Special to The Washington Post.

Front Royal, Va., April 13.—Elaborate preparations have been made for the opening of the local baseball season tomorrow. The St. Joseph's Club, of Washington, D. C., is scheduled to meet the home team at Sportsmans Park in the initial contest of the season. Mayor B. J. Hillidge will officially open the season by tossing out the first ball. Business activities for the day will be virtually suspended in the afternoon.

The visitors, five times winners of the Capital City League, are reputed to be even stronger this year than in previous years, and Front Royal is expecting a close game. The home club will be represented by the same players who performed here last year, with the exception of Ray Borden, who has retired from the game because of poor health. "Lefty" Jewett, popular Washington twirler, will replace him in the line-up.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: BOWIE RACE TRACK.

Sweet charity benefits from today's closing Bowie program. Tell all your friends to come out. The management has announced that there will be no increase in the "take" from the mutuels. This should be an incentive to sock it in. Tell your friends about that.

If these selections don't pay you dividends, tell me. Last chance for shipping money. Look out for the sleepers.

BILL.

The Welfare, a contest for 3-year-olds at a mile and 70 yards, is the closing day feature and I look for BROADWAY LIGHT to take it, despite the class of STEPENFETCHIT and MY FERGUS. BROADWAY LIGHTS has had much experience at a route and has several good races to recommend selection. STEPENFETCHIT hasn't been out since last year at Belmont and has never been more than 5 furlongs in competition. Subject of flattering reports by clockers, MY FERGUS is well thought of by his handlers. May make it a battle for the top pair.

FIRST RACE—SULTRY tried hard to win brackets in Cuba and Florida and appears to have found a spot where he can score. KNIGHT CAP had only one race as a 2-year-old, but comes to the races this season with several good trials to his credit. Trained by Elmer Trueman and dangerous among these. ZODE for third money.

SECOND RACE—STROLL ALONG showed little the last time when his stablemate, Keggy, won. However, STROLL ALONG has worked well and may be capable of turning back this opposition. MINTOGEE ran third the other day and has an excellent chance. SINGING HEART in the third hole.

THIRD RACE—ESSARE to beat this kind again. Has been consitsent here and is at top form. NEALON KAY to furnish chief opposition. MOONPHASE, particularly with Gilbert up, must be considered among the possible winners of this race.

FOURTH RACE—JILTED won his only race and drops 5 pounds here. Robertson is likely to ride again, and this combination may be in front at the finish. SUN MEMORY won handily the last time and is the one to beat. GAY PARTY for third.

SIXTH RACE—FINNIC seems equal to the task of beating STONE MARTIN in this battle. Has turned the trick before and has shown speed at this track. STONE MARTIN lost the last by a close margin and is difficult to pass up. BUBOLA seems unable to find last year's form. Pick her for third again.

SEVENTH RACE — The honest JUDGE CAVERLY, fit and courageous, appears ready to turn on rivals and collect the long end of a purse. Must beat FAIR BILL and KEITH.

Carr Heads Body to Raise District's Olympic Quota

PROMINENT local sportsmen met yesterday at the Army and Navy Club to formulate plans for the raising of $5,000, the District of Columbia's quota of the total which will defray the expenses of America's participation in the Olympic games this summer in California.

Arthur Carr, prominent local sports enthusiast, was named chairman of the committee empowered to raise the money. Other officials selected were Winfree Johnson, secretary, and Alfred M. Nevius, of the Riggs Bank, treasurer. Maj. William C. Rose, a member of the national Olympic committee, will collaborate with the local organization.

Vice President Curtis was extended the honorary chairmanship of the local committee. Honorary vice chairmanships were extended to Ernest Lee Jahncke, Assistant Secretary of the Navy; Commissioner Crosby and Undersecretary of State William R. Castle.

An "Olympic Day" will be introduced into the local golfing calendar as a means of raising the needed funds. Each local club will be asked to stage a tournament on that day, with all entry fees going toward the Olympic fund. Plans are being furthered to stage an amateur boxing card, at an unannounced site, a society circus at Fort Myer, a horse show at the Wardman Park Hotel Hunt Club, a nationally attractive track meet and a "day" at the ball park.

The committee pledged itself to do everything in its power to avoid the subscription method of raising the funds.

The Olympic fund raising organization will maintain an office in the Mills Building.

United Light & Power Votes to Omit Dividend

New York, April 13 (A.P.).—The United Light & Power Co. announced today that directors have decided to omit the quarterly dividend on the class "A" and class "B" common stocks due at this time.

The course was taken in order to protect the interest of all security holders of the company, it was stated. Previously the company paid quarterly dividends of 25 cents on the "A" and "B" stocks.

ELECTRICAL POWER PRODUCTION MORE

Atlantic Seaboard Makes Best Showing; St. Louis & Milwaukee Losses Rise.

New York, April 13 (A.P.).—A slightly more favorable comparison in electric power output is shown for the week ended April 9 than in the preceding week.

The week's output of 1,456,076,000 kilowatt-hours was 11.1 per cent below the same week last year, whereas the previous week's production of 1,489,206,000 kilowatt-hours was 11.9 below the corresponding week of 1931.

The latter decrease stands as the largest since the downward curve in power consumption started.

The Atlantic seaboard continued to make relatively the best showing with a decrease of 5.6 per cent. The central industrial section, outlined by Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, St. Louis and Milwaukee, registered a decrease of 14.8 per cent, while the Chicago district alone showed a decrease of 8.8 per cent. Output on the Pacific Coast was 13.8 per cent below last year.

Retail Prices Decline 1.2 Per Cent More

New York, April 13 (A.P.).—The Fairchild retail price index as of April 1 shows a decline of 1.2 per cent, compared with March 1, the decrease for March being slightly less than the decline during February as compared with January.

Prices on April 1 were 17.5 per cent below a year ago, and 21.7 per cent below January, 1931.

Chesapeake & Ohio Net Expected to Advance

New York, April 13 (A.P.).—Chesapeake & Ohio Railway's March net income is estimated at about $2,000,000 against $1,762,221 in the like month of 1931.

Net income for the first quarter is placed at about 61 cents a share on the common stock against 65 cents in the same period of 1931.

STEEL OUTPUT DROP MAY BE CORRECTED

Larger Orders Now Indicate Coming Improvement as Autos Speed Work.

New York, April 13 (A.P.).—A few bright spots are apparent in the steel trade in spite of a further decline in ingot production to 21 per cent of capacity from the 22 per cent average of the past two weeks, Iron Age reported today.

Indications of improvement are seen in slightly larger orders for rails and track supplies, a gain in orders for structural steel, and a stepping up of automobile schedules, it was stated by this review.

The Ford Motor Co. has issued inquiries for sheets, strip, bars and wire, but has not yet placed the tonnage that will be necessary to produce the 300,000 cars for which it has orders.

The review states that concentration of manufacturing operations as an economy measure is in process, and that some steel companies are adopting more stringent remedies for excessive costs.

The Iron Age composite prices are unchanged this week. Finished steel is 2.087 a pound, pig iron $14.36 a gross ton, and steel scrap $8.21 a ton.

Radiator Head Backs Business for Revival

New York, April 13 (A.P.).—Clarence Woolley, chairman of the board of the American Radiator & Standard Sanitary Corporation, let it be known today that he is not of that alleged group of faint-hearted business leaders.

Addressing the company's stockholders at their annual meeting, Mr. Woolley declared that "we have more faith in our business even in this dark hour of repression than ever before." Commenting on the company's financial position he said, "I can not imagine any set of conditions that would impair the financial integrity of this company."

The common stock, he declared, now is selling at about one-third of its tangible value, with net current assets of the company about equal to its present price.

Bank Acceptance Slash Points to Lower Rates

New York, April 13.—Two reductions of one-quarter of one per cent in yield rates on bankers acceptances within the last few days has prompted a somewhat wider expectation of an early cut in the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate.

It is still believed in some quarters, however, that the bank rate will not be lowered until some of the other reserve banks reduce the rates from the 3½ per cent rate, which is uniform outside this district.

ANACONDA COPPER MINE REPORTS LOSS

Net Income Decline in 1931 Placed at $3,151,726; Yield Curtailed.

New York, April 13 (A.P.).—Anaconda Copper Mining Co., one of the world's leading producers and fabricators of copper, today reported a net loss of $3,151,726 for 1931, after charges for depreciation and obsolescence, in contrast to a net profit of $18,782,968 for 1930.

The statement showed an inventory write-down of $7,449,459, reflecting the reducing of all unsold metals to market values, and dividends paid of $6,765,656. These and other minor deductions resulted in an aggregate deficit for the year of $17,829,338, charged to surplus.

The balance sheet listed current assets of $113,349,757, and current liabilities of $71,338,989. The chief item in the current liabilities was $61,500,000 in notes payable. Current assets consisted of $6,363,551 in cash, $2,708,829 in marketable securities, $11,161,858 in receivables, and inventories and supplies on hand of $93,116,517.

The corporation curtailed its gross production of copper to 561,171,473 pounds from 647,411,665 in 1930 and 990,569,463 in 1929.

WESTERN UNION HINT OF COMBINE IS SEEN

President Carlton Suggests Affiliations May Result in Future.

New York, April 13 (A.P.).—The inference that the Western Union Telegraph Co. might, under the pressure of present economic conditions, be forced to affiliate with some of its competing enterprises, was drawn from remarks made by Newcomb Carlton, president of the company, at the annual meeting today.

"Whether Western Union is destined to stand alone as a corporation as it has for the past 76 years, or whether it will be part of a larger plan we can not tell," he said.

"No action has been taken or plans made to bring about anything of this kind," he continued. "But we must be prepared for a change when business comes back. Primarily we believe that satisfactory income can come only from satisfactory service which we are trying to maintain on a half load.

"We could close many of our offices many of which are not profitable but they are necessary to maintain a national service essential to the communication business."

The company had a net profit in the first quarter of about $200,000, Mr. Carlton stated. This covered interest and maintenance charges and was better than the company estimated. The first quarter is usually the lean period of the year.

J. C. Willever, first vice president of the company, was elected a director, succeeding W. H. Truesdale, who recently resigned.

Sales Net Gain Made By Bramberger Stores

Newark, N. J., April 13 (A.P.).—L. Bamberger & Co., department store chain, announces net sales of $35,919,463 for the year ended January 20, 1932, as compared with $35,872,278 for the preceding year.

Stock Fluctuations Result In New Fractional Losses

Stocks.

The selling pressure of recent weeks appeared at end today. A strong opening rally was lost later in a narrowing trade, but the 90-stock index was a fraction higher at the close. Rails, however, continued downward.

Bonds.

News that Washington was working out a new credit expansion policy imparted a timid note to the trade. The drift was lower.

Curb.

As on the big board, the Curb traders were mostly awaiting definite news of the Federal Reserve's credit policy. The trend ruled steady in narrower trade.

Wheat.

Liverpool cables that American wheat was out of line broke the sustained rally at Chicago and the close was at the day's bottom, about 2 cents down.

Cotton.

Liverpool cables gave a firm tone to the opening at New York, at a slight advance, but buyers were not aggressive, and with the weakness in grain and stocks cotton sold off to close unchanged to 2 points lower.

Liquidation Wave Subsides to Trickle With Sales of 1,090,200 Shares.

By JOHN L. COOLEY.

New York, April 13 (A.P.).—Against a background of cheapening credit and a batch of negative or disappointing trade reports, stocks backed and filled irregularly today.

Although the closing was lower, net losses in pivotal issues were largely fractional. Probably of more importance than the changes was evidence that recent waves of liquidation had subsided into a trickle, for only 1,090,200 shares changed hands, the smallest volume in a month.

There were roughly a dozen exceptions to the rule of narrow losses. People's Gas, in common with other insull issues, weakened and was down 10¼ net.

Norfolk & Western Declines.

Norfolk & Western suffered a late break of 8½ points. Lambert and Drug, Inc., sold off about 3, City Ice & Fuel slumped 5, and Standard Oil of New Jersey reacted more than a point, presumably because holders feared for the safety of the extra dividend in view of current estimates on last year's earnings.

Coca-Cola's 5-point dip to a quotation just under par left American Telephone and Homestake Mining in sole ownership among active common stocks of quotations above 100.

Union Pacific lost 2 net, which meant violation of the 50 mark, and Atchison was off 1. Otherwise little of interest happened to the rails.

In U. S. Steel, Telephone, Allied Chemical, Dupont, General Motors, National Biscuit, American Tobacco B, North American, and Sears Roebuck losses averaged half a point.

Woolworth was steady on maintenance of the dividend, although no adverse action had been expected.

Continental Can also stuck to its old basis of payments.

Two Rallies.

Two rallies broke into the decline. Just after the opening pivotal prices firmed 1 to 3 points before meeting enough resistance to cancel these gains.

Early afternoon saw another and feebler upturn coincident with the slash in bill rates, news that reserve banks planned a more aggressive program of Government security purchases, and word that large member banks had been asked not to liquidate loans adequately secured. Nevertheless, none of these developments proved sufficiently inspiring to sustain the rise.

Expansion of Federal reserve credit through more aggresive open market operations will meet the wishes of those who have urged a thorough trial of such a policy as a means of arresting deflation.

At present, member bank Federal discounts approximate $635,000,000 and it has been suggested that commercial institutions might not be willing to lend more freely until these borrowings were greatly reduced.

Acceptance dealers took the unusually energetic measure of a half of 1 per cent rate cut in an effort to bring acceptances into a market which had long been impoverished by lack of fresh supplies.

The reduction served to attract some offerings, but hardly enough to meet demand.

BOND MARKET SINKS TO NEW LOW LEVELS

Federal Issues Continue to Rise, Despite Other Price Declines.

By VICTOR EUBANK.

New York, April 13 (A.P.).—Buoyancy of United States Government loans seemed to give some encouragement to the general bond market today, but corporate issues, after sporadic and rather feeble rallies, again dropped into new low territory for the year.

Strength of the Federals, ten of which recorded the highest prices for 1932, was attributed partly to the belief that easy money conditions have finally arrived and to the fact that banks and investors are steadily accumulating both the liberties and treasuries.

While the average for 60 corporate securities closed two-tenths of a point lower, various issues displayed a firmer undertone than usual. Some dealers were of the opinion that the market today gave indications of a drying up of liquidation.

There were a number of outstanding weak spots and at the same time the list developed a host of inconsistencies.

Gains were shown by some bonds of Aitchison, Canadian National, St. Paul, Rock Island, Delaware & Hudson, Erie, Hudson & Manhattan, New York Central, Nickel Plate, Southern Pacific and Union Pacific. Both Northern and Missouri Pacifics were weak, as were St. Louis Southwesterns, Friscos and Southerns.

The utilities maintained a fairly even trend. International Telephones held substantial gains. Among the industrials Armour & Co. loans were down from 1 to 5 points.

Sales totaled $14,569,000 par value.

Smaller Selling on Curb.

Selling dwindled in today's curb market, but the list was unable to accomplish a sustained recovery, and closed irregularly lower.

The list showed firming tendencies for a time in the morning, but advances were largely lost as the session wore on. Weakness again cropped out in some of the Insull issues.

Commonwealth Edison broke sharply, along with Peoples Gas on the big board. It closed at 54, off 9½, and 1½ above the day's low. Middle West Utilities sold at ¼, off ⅜. Electric Bond & Share advanced a fraction, then reacted to close off ½. United Light "A" was firm.

GRAIN VALUES FALL UNDER PROFIT SALES

Wheat Prices Close Lower as Damage to Crops Is Minimized.

Chicago, April 13 (A.P.).—Under a heavy load of selling to realize profits, grain values tumbled today, powerless to hold fully its recent bulge of almost 8 cents.

A majority of commission houses advocated profit taking rather than new purchases, in view of possible rains and because of some doubts that growing weather would justify reports of big crop damage. A low barometer in Texas was regarded with suspicion by many traders as perhaps indicative of a general breakup of the drought.

Wheat closed unsteady near the day's bottom level, 1¼ to 1⅝ cents lower than yesterday's finish; corn, ¼ to ⅜ cent down, and oats, ¼ to ½ cent off.

From the outset, wheat bulls found themselves handicapped by antagonistic action of the Liverpool market and by assertions that United States wheat had become out of line to compete for export business.

Meanwhile, crop news was even more disconcerting than heretofore, with special notice being given to reports that from Salina, Kans., to Amarillo, Tex., the condition of wheat was only 20 to 35 per cent of a ten-year average.

On the other hand, it was pointed out that despite recent decreases the visible supply of United States wheat was yet 14,000,000 bushels larger than at this time last year, owing partly to much increased quantities of Farm Board wheat in Canadian elevators.

COTTON PRICES SAG AFTER EARLY RALLY

May Contracts Close 2 Points Lower to Net Unchanged.

New York, April 13 (A.P.).—After holding quiet and steady during the greater part of the day, cotton eased in the last hour under realizing or reselling by recent buyers who appeared to be influenced by the decline in wheat and the indifferent showing of the stock market.

May contracts, after selling up to 6.28 during the earlier trading, broke to 6.18 and closed at that price, with the general market closing steady, net unchanged to 2 points lower.

The opening was steady at an advance of 2 to 5 points on overnight buying orders and covering in response to relatively steady Liverpool reports.

After the close at Liverpool, demand tapered off and prices sagged off slowly during the afternoon. There was sufficient trade buying and covering to hold the market within 4 or 5 points of the high during the middle of the afternoon, but offerings increased in the last hour, with July selling off to 6.35 and December to 6.76. Closing quotations were at the lowest of the day on most positions.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE American Association of Advertising Agencies inviting Representative Ewin L. Davis, of Tennessee, and Senator C. C. Dill, of Washington, to address their session devoted to radio tomorrow afternoon are the first, as far as we know, to make any move to iron out the differences between the radio advertising people and Congress. We suggested at least two years ago that the radio advertisers meet the Radio Commission and Congress half way, and believe if this had been done much of the present criticism of advertising announcemnts could have been forestalled.

We haven't talked to Judge Davis lately, but in our last conversation he said he had been receiving many complaints about what he termed "objectionable sales talks," and threatened to introduce a bill into Congress which would restrict advertising mention in a program to the name of the product or sponsor.

Even at this late date, we believe if the American Association of Advertising Agencies, representing as they do the principal program sponsors, offered to eliminate objectionable features specified by such governmental officials as Judge Davis, Senator Dill, or Chairman Charles McK. Saltzman, congressional or Radio Commission interference might be anticipated.

THE latest complaint to be received is the following letter signed by R. S. Eliot, of Los Angeles:

"I am off radio. The end came the other night, when, dog-tired from the daily grind, I twisted the dials and drew the advertising patter of a firm of cheerio undertakers!

"But, truth to tell, I was already fed up with the inanities of broadcasting and ready to quit. I do not feel that, for the sake of mangled fragments of opera, an occasional symphony or a public address, which I can read a few hours later over my morning coffee, I can longer stomach the constant society of high-pressure salesmen. I believe, as did my English forefathers, that a man's house is his castle and I decline to allow cheeky fellows, on whom I would shut my doors, to steal into my home by way of a box of vacuum tubes.

"Henceforth the merchants who get my patronage will be those who use channels other than the ether to advertise their wares. I claim the privilege of reading or ignoring advertising matter as I see fit. I intend, by my own fireside at least, to choose my company. No agents or peddlers need apply.

"My house shall no longer be a market place. I propose to have peace. I have sold my radio."

NO blood-curdling shrieks, followed by frenzied telephone calls asking what terrible thing had happened, will interrupt the broadcast from the Pan American Union tonight as was the case with a recent radio program originating there. Having tried every way known to humans to keep them quiet, Franklin P. Adams will remove the South American parrots from their accustomed place in the tropical patio, where the program by the United Service Orchestra will be played.

The last time Mr. Adams tried covering the birds' cages and everything seemed to be all right until one of the parrots broke loose in the middle of a musical number. Adams hurled the "Constitution of Peru," which happened to be the handiest book, at the cage but it was too late. Radio listeners thought some one had been killed.

Ordinarily the birds are quiet and friendly enough. They are great talkers, however, and the noisest one, "Pedro," has a special salute—a sort of somersault around his perch, for Mr. Adams, who is his good friend when there is no broadcasting going on.

The Army Band, in an all Latin-American program directed by Capt. William J. Stannard, will broadcast a special Pan American Day program from the Ellipse (WRC—2:30 p. m.). Vice President Curtis will speak. Flags of the 21 American republics will be saluted as they are raised by officers from the high school cadets. A special effort will be made to reach Germany and distant parts of the world.

The United Service Orchestra concert from the Pan American Union tonight will be broadcast by NAA, Arlington, from 9 o'clock to 9:40. After giving the time broadcast NAA will resume with the concert at 10:20 p. m. The WJZ network will broadcast a portion of the concert, beginning at 10:45 p. m.

THERE will be a debate this morning at Western High School on the subject, "Resolved, That the British system of radio broadcasting be adopted in this country."

Those who will take the affirmative are Donald W. Lamm, Philip Lauman and Paul Waldron. The negative will be taken by Karl Dieffenbach, Harry Burgess and Hal Claggett.

The opening program in the annual Catholic charities drive from St. Patrick's Cathedral to be heard tonight through Station WLWL, New York, will be the first broadcast ever originated at that point. The full Cathedral choir, under the direction of the Rev. J. Rostagno, will participate, the entire program being under the musical direction of Pietro Yon, organist. Station WLWL broadcasts on 1-100 kilocycles (272 meters) and the program is scheduled to start at 8 o'clock.

Review day for "the world's largest music class" will loome tomorrow when Walter Damrosch presents a program of ten compositions over WRC during the N. B. C. music appreciation hour at 11 a. m.

Members of the "class" will attempt to recall the names of compositions and names of composers. Compositions familiar to students of the "A" and "B" series only will be heard.

Israel Zangwill's drama of immigration, "The Melting Pot," which lends itself unusually well to radio presentation, will be given by the Radio Guild Players tomorrow afternoon (WRC, 4:15 o'clock). The play was first produced here October 5, 1908, and dedicated to Theodore Roosevelt "in recognition of his strenuous struggle against the forces that threaten to shipwreck the great republic which carries mankind and its fortunes."

CHILDREN all over the country will have a chance to go behind the scenes at the circus via radio tomorrow afternoon (WRC, 3:15 o'clock). A group of boys and girls, escorted by Madge Tucker, will accompany George Hicks, the announcer, through the side shows and then under the big top in a tour of the "Greatest Show on Earth."

GRAIN STOCKS LESS IN CANADA POSITIONS

Reductions Reach Total of 179,000,000 Bushels as Crops Improve.

Ottawa, Ontario, April 13 (A.P.).—The volume of grain stocks in all positions in Canada on March 31 showed substantial reductions as compared with the same date a year ago, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

Extensive reductions were shown in wheat, oats, barley, flax and rye. The total reduction in all grains amounted to 179,000,000 bushels.

Wheat stocks on March 31 amounted to 243,300,165 bushels, a decrease of 36,795,226 bushels from last year. Crop correspondents reported 58,651 bushels of the 1931 wheat crop of 304,144,000 bushels, or 19 per cent, remained in farmers' hands on March 31. This included seed for the 1932 crop. Last year the percentage remaining on farms was 22 and in 1930 it was 15 per cent.

The report indicated the carryover of Canadian wheat as of July 31 would be in the neighborhood of 103,000,000 bushels, the smallest since 1928.

Bright prospects for the new growing season were reported.

Exports of wheat and wheat flour for the period between August 1 last and February 28 totaled 128,903,226 bushels. An estimated 85,000,000 bushels will be added to that figure during the remaining five months of the crop year.

Lawyer, Demonstrating, Shoots Self.

Detroit, April 13 (A.P.).—Attempting to demonstrate how a client shot and wounded another man, Allen W. Kent, Detroit attorney, who for several years was an assistant prosecutor, today shot and seriously wounded himself in the office of Fred W. Frahm, chief of detectives.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

EGGS are actually picked off bushes, that is, fish eggs. Yellow perch lay their eggs attached together in long ribbons, which become fastened to plants growing along the banks of a stream. When the water recedes, they are left high and dry. In the spring of 1930, Supervisor E. W. Cobb, of Connecticut, and his assistants gathered 60,000,000 perch eggs, which otherwise would have been left hanging to die, and had them hatched in the State fish hatcheries.

O. E. Nelson, postmaster at Marietta, Minn., is the authority for this strange as it seems: A pigeon, for more than two years, has amused itself and many residents of Marietta by flying very low up and down the main street, and having a Boston terrier chase it. Many times the terrier has almost succeeded, and now every day he is joined in the chase by two other dogs, much to the enjoyment of late afternoon shoppers.

SNOWFALL IN MOSCOW.

("The Soviet government plans to keep snow from Moscow and other cities, making it fall only on farming areas by electric ionization."—News item.)

* * * * *

STALIN (to secretary—It is still snowing in Moscow, is it not?

Secretary—Still snowing, sir.

Stalin—Summon Comrade Itzkalofsky at once! Such impertinence!

* * * * *

* * * *

Stalin (indignantly)—Well, what's the meaning of this?

Itzkalofsky—You refer to the snow, I assume.

Stalin—Precisely! Six inches of it on the streets of Moscow at this very moment! I suppose you are aware of its embarrassment.

Itzkalofsky (hanging his head)—I am.

Stalin—And what is worse, it is STILL SNOWING!

Itzkalofsky (sadly) — Yes. Still snowing.

Stalen (pacing the floor)—Such effrontery! Such brazen conduct in high office! Such inefficiency! For snow to fall in the streets of Moscow at all is bad enough, but to let it fall even after I sent for you . . . It's outrageous!

Itzkalofsky—I'm sorry.

* * * * *

STALIN—I want no idle apologies This is a most brazen defiance of all Soviet dignity and power. I warn you, the displeasure of the people will be very great. One more inch of snow on the streets of Moscow may mean your blood, Commissioner.

Itzkalofsky—I know it, Comrade.

Stalin—You had definite orders that not a flake of snow was to fall within the city.

Itzkalofsky—True, but——

Stalin—You knew perfectly well that every snowstorm was to be refused entrance to the city. You knew——

Itzkalofsky—But this was a very sudden snowstorm. There was no warning.

Stalin—Bah! Is the Soviet government to be held before the whole country as lacking in alertness? Am I to be pictured as a premier who can be outwitted by a 6-inch snowstorm?

Itzkalofsky—It came in the middle of the night and——

Stalin (quite furious)—Does Soviet Russia bow to a snowstorm because it approaches under cover of darkness?

Itzkalofsky—The point is, if I may explain, that my inspectors had assured me it would be rain.

Stalin—It will go hard with them.

Itzkalofsky—It has already gone hard with them. They were shot an hour ago.

* * * * *

STALIN—How about the weather forecasters?

Itzkalofsky—They made no mention of any storm whatsoever. They predicted balmy fair weather.

Stalin—What have you done with them?

Itzkalofsky—I have ordered them executed tomorrow.

Stalin—Good! But why tomorrow? They shall be shot today—immediately! All weather observers should be shot immediately. They are never right.

Itzkkalofsky—Never.

Stalin—Have you nothing else to say by way of explaining this gross violation of the Soviet's snow edict?

Itzkalofsky—I'm afraid I haven't.

Stalin—Then I must order your execution, too, comrade.

Itzkalofsky (looking out the window)—Look! It is turning to rain!

Stalin (always the iron man).—Rain or snow, you die by the firing squad tonight! And I was foolish enough to think you had it.

Itzkalofsky—Had what?

Stalin—Blizzard Control!

NOT THAT SORT.

THE stock market probe is on again. And just when most people had begun to think that the Senate committee had decided to put it away and forget it.

One more summons to Washington and Mr. Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, will qualify as an expert on commuting.

Mr. Whitney is being examined on the bear market, but what could a man who bid 150 for steel common be expected to know about bear operations?

President von Hindenburg has won the German election from Herr Hitler for the second time within a month. But Hitler's gain of two million votes makes it doubtful that the general gets permanent possession.

SAM BONHAM Have greatly appreciated all your letters and suggestions. You must be a real fan if you are starting your third scrapbook. Happy days!
MARIAN SMITH - Vera Little' arrived and is being shown around the Wheelan Studio by Director Art Horum. She may be given a small part in some future production. Thanks!

E. TAYLOR. Don't be silly! No offense was intended! Where's your sense of humor?
BILL MERLO. Thanks for the nice letter. No copyright permission was necessary. Cannot recommend any particular school. Begin by copying the work of your favorite cartoonists and then attempt to create something original. Good luck!
ALMA WHITE. It is gratifying to know that your pupils are so interested in Mi. Cannot tell yet when we shall do another "classic."

MRS. L. H. McCUE Thank you for the suggestion. My best wishes to you and your boys!
JIMMY COOPER Your letter is much appreciated. Lotta fans sent "Red" one of the "MINUTE MOVIES" in book form as yet but because of so many requests we are hoping to do something about that soon.

GASOLINE ALLEY Don't miss this feature in colors in The Sunday Post. Enter Squint

I'M AWFULLY GLAD. THE FOLKS HAVE STOPPED TO SEE SQUINT OUT ON HIS RANCH.
SQUINT? WHO'S SQUINT?
OH HE'S WONDERFUL, PRIGGY! HE'S ONE OF THESE POWERFUL WESTERN MEN — BOLD, DARING AND RESOURCEFUL — A MAN OF THE GREAT OUTDOORS.
WHAT ABOUT IT — DOES THAT MAKE ME AN ELK OR SOMETHING?
THAT'S GOOD! I NEVER SAW PRIGGY TAKE ANYTHING JUST THAT WAY BEFORE.
YEAH, I'VE HEARD OF HIM. HE WAS SWEET ON LORA WHEN HE WAS HERE ONCE. I SUPPOSE I SHOULD PASS INTO A RAGE OR SOMETHING.

HEY! QUICK! LIFT THIS !!# OFF ME BEFORE IT BURNS ME UP!!
THERE WOULD HAVE TO BE A DELAY!
COPYRIGHT JOHN F. DILLE CO. REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
BY THE TIME I FLASHED OFF AGAIN, THE FUGITIVES HAD GAINED GREATLY.
OH DON'T MENTION IT.
THANKS AWFULLY, SIR! SORRY I DELAYED YOU!
AND WHEN I SIGHTED THEM AGAIN—
THAT'S KANE ALL RIGHT, BOUNCING A CLUB OFF THE DRIVER'S BEAN! THEY'RE LOADING CASES ABOARD — CAN I CATCH THEM BEFORE THEY ROCKET ALOFT?
